GERMANS ADMIT NEW RETREAT

Adjutant General Cole Quits as Militia Head

STATE HEAD OF MILITIA TO QUIT

Adjutant - General Cole, After Conferring with Governor, Says He Will Retire Next Saturday

After a conference with Governor McCall today, Adjutant-General Charles H. Cole said that he would send in his resignation some time next week, to take effect next Saturday.

He also said that he would not discuss politics until he had completed his work as commander of the militia.

General Cole's resignation was not unexpected, as he had said several times that had not the Mexican trouble taken place he would have resigned long ago. It has been stated a number of times in print that he intended to seek the Democratic nomination for Governor and the General did not deny it.

General Cole will be opposed for the Democratic nomination by Frederick W. Mansfield, a well-known Boston lawyer, who has represented organized labor. Others may also seek the nomination.

Former Governor Walsh is expected home next week, and upon his arrival the Democratic forces will begin to line up for the next campaign. Cole was adjutant-general under Walsh, and it is believed that Walsh will endorse his candidacy. Either former Mayor Fitzgerald or former Governor Walsh or both will go into the primaries for United States Senator against Senator Lodge.

Mother Is Arrested for Airing Baby in Carriage on West End Sidewalk

Mrs. William Applehaun of No. 36 North Anderson street, West End, and her daughter, Laura, whom she was airing in carriage on West End sidewalk.

Must the tenement baby stifle in the house during the not spell because its carriage may block the sidewalk?

Mrs. William Applehaun of No. 36 North Anderson street, West End, was hauled into the Municipal Court by a policeman, charged with violating the law by leaving her three-months-old baby in its carriage on the sidewalk in front of her home.

The temperature was in the neighborhood of 85.

Judge Sullivan filed the case.

The police side of the case is that the law was being violated, that complaints had been made about sidewalk obstructions, that persons had been warned and that finally the police had to enforce the law.

The tenement mothers and their friends—the latter including district nurses, social settlement workers and members of the city government—are aroused at this application of a sidewalk law to sweltering tenement house babies.

BALLANTYNE READY TO AID.

In fact, Councilor Walter Ballantyne is quoted as saying that he knows of no ordinance which prevents a mother from airing her baby on the sidewalk and, if there is, he cannot believe it is meant to apply in such humid weather as Boston has suffered of late.

If the ordinance is a drastic and binding one Mr. Ballantyne will ask the City Council to remedy it.

The weather was distressing on Wednesday, the day Patrolman Foley took Mrs. Applebaum's name for a summons into court. The temperature was 82 at mid-afternoon, or possibly more down on the heated pavements. But the humidity was high, nakin, life a burden. Children suffered terribly.

Mrs. Applebaum was in court yesterday, a day comparatively comfortable on account of refreshing east winds. But the weather bureau at Washington has sent broadcast an announcement that today's wave prevailing in the Middle West is due to strike Boston tomorrow.

The advent of a hot wave is viewed

Senate Votes U. S. Ask Clemency for Irish Prisoners

By International News Service.

Washington, July 29.—The Senate, by a vote of 4 to 19, this afternoon adopted a resolution expressing hope that the British government would exercise clemency in the treatment of Irish political prisoners.

Today's action was a compromise growing out of several weeks controversy over the Casement affir.

Many Senators who had opposed American interference voted for the resolution when the modified draft, which was recommended by a minority report of the Foreign Relations Committee, was presented. The resolution adopted makes no mention of Casement's case.

The text follows:

"Resolved, That the Senate expresses the hope that the British government may exercise clemency in the treatment of Irish political prisoners, and that the President be requested to transmit this hope to the British government."

BANDITS USED BY ALLIES, SAY TURKS

Constantinople, July 29.—The allies, under the protection of the guns of their warships, landed more than 100 bandits on the north bank of the Tugiadere, west of Aevadjik. Our troops drove them back to ship.

By JOHN W. MORAN, JR.

Braves Field, July 29.—Miller Huggins and his Cardinals are even with us today for a series of six games, commencing with a double bill. These gentlemen are always troublesome in this town and, although they occupy a low position in the standing, the Braves are always forced to the limit to beat them.

The Cardinals presented the same lineup as in their previous appearance here, with the exception that Brat base was covered by Gonzales, Miller being moved to second.

Rudolph was selected by the Miracle Man to do the heaving, being opposed by Leon Ames.

THE GAME.
FIRST INNING

St. Louis—Bescher doubled to left centre. Gonzales bunted, but Gowdy threw to Smith in time to get Bescher at third. Long hit in front of the plate, going out Gowdy to Konetchy. Rudolph tossed out Miller. NO RUNS.

Braves—After Maranville had been thrown out by Hornsby, Ames filled the bases with passes to Evers, Wilhoit and Magee in succession. Konetchy fled to Bescher and Evers trying to score was doubled, Bescher to Snyder. NO RUNS.

SECOND INNING.

St. Louis—Hornsby beat out an infield hit. Wilson forced Hornsby, Konetchy to Maranville. Snyder's grounder took an ugly bound, hitting Evers on the shoulder and being good Umpires—Connolly and Owens.

Navin Field, Detroit, Mich., July 29.—The Tigers and Red Sox started a six-game series with a double-header this afternoon. Despite the heat, which was so oppressive as to be almost unbearable, a big crowd turned out.

Coveleskie for Detroit and Ruth for Boston were the opposing pitchers in the first game. The outfield was baked from the long drouth and promised many extra base hits.

THE GAME.
FIRST INNING.

Red Sox—Hooper flied to Cobb. Coveleskie threw out Barry, who bunted. Lewis grounded to Vitt. NO RUNS.

Detroit—Vitt walked. Bush singled to centre, Vitt stopping at second. Burns bunted and Vitt was forced at third. Ruth to Gardner. Barry let Cobb's grounder go by into centre and Bush scored. Burns took third and Cobb second. Veach scored Burns and Cobb with a double to left. Crawford singled to left and Veach

ORDER THE APPAM BE GIVEN UP

Lower Court Directs German Prize Be Surrendered to British; Appeal to Supreme Court

By International News Service.

Norfolk, Va., July 29.—The British steamer Appam, taken as a prize of war by the German commerce raider Moewe, and brought into Norfolk harbor by a German prize crew, today was ordered turned back to her British owners by the United States court here.

This decision is preliminary, as it was agreed by the State Department that an appeal, which involves the interpretation of the Prussian treaty of 1828, should be carried to the Supreme Court of the United States.

The German government, through its counsel here, Robert M. Hughes, will file immediately a notice of appeal from today's decision.

The decision, while directing the transfer of the Appam and her cargo to the British owners, was not made immediately effective. District Court Judge Waddill, who presided, will determine next Wednesday what disposition will be made of the vessel and cargo pending the final decision of the Supreme Court on the appeal.

He will give a hearing to the attorneys for Germany and Great Britain at that time.

In his decision the court declared that there were three points at issue in the proceedings, and he decided all of them in favor of the British contentions. They were:

1—What are the rights, existing between the United States and Germany, respecting the right of entry of prizes of war captured at sea, and of asylum in the waters of the United States, whether arising under treaties or under international law.

2—Has this court jurisdiction to entertain the suits for restitution of the property in question to its owners.

3—What is the character of the property seized, whether public or private and can the court, as against the German government, claim the right to afford relief as between the litigants.

LYNN MAN KILLED IN CYCLE ACCIDENT

Frank North, forty-five, a Lynn widower, was instantly killed in a cycle-car accident at Freeman's Corner on the Peabody-Newburyport turnpike, near West Peabody.

North was driving the machine, sitting on the motor-cycle saddle. In the side-car attachment was Arthur Johnson of Lynn. On the down grade the side-car dropped on the roadway, swinging the whole machine around so violently that North was thrown. He struck on his head. Johnson escaped with a few bruises.

DEATH RATE IS LOWEST OF YEAR

The death rate for the week, issued by the Board of Health, despite the hot weather, is the lowest for any week this year, being 11.59 per thousand. The corresponding week last year the rate was 13.38. The number of deaths this week were 168, a decrease of 53 under this week last year.

Plant of Menace, Anti-Catholic Paper, Blown Up

Springfield, Ill., July 29.—The plant of the Menace Publishing Company at Aurora, from which is issued The Menace, a paper devoted to attacks on the Roman Catholic Church, was badly wrecked by bombs today.

Three bombs were exploded under the building. The fire which followed consumed many copies of the publication before it was extinguished.

It was thought that a carefully laid plot was carried out. The police were asked to watch for any strangers taking trains out of town.

$25,000,000 NEEDED TO FORTIFY ISLANDS

Washington, July 29.—It will cost approximately $25,000,000 adequately to fortify and defend the Danish West Indies, according to army experts here who are deeply interested in the government's prospective purchase.

The reported purchase price of $25,000,000 is regarded as a fair estimate of what it will cost to put them in a proper state of preparedness.

GERMAN CONFIDENCE UNSHAKEN AT THE OPENING OF THIRD YEAR OF WAR

STILL LAY BLAME ON ENGLAND

By International News Service.

Berlin, July 29.—"Building upon what she has already achieved, Germany treads the threshold of the third year of the war with unshaken confidence. But the goal has not been reached, for the enemy has not yet come to see the impossibility of subjugating Germany."

The foregoing is the concluding paragraph of a statement issued by the German Foreign Office, in which the causes, course and future of the war is discussed from a political standpoint.

Germany accuses the allies of full responsibility for the conflict, declaring that Russia and Italy seek to expand their frontiers, that England fights for the commercial supremacy of the world, and that France was led into the maelstrom by the passion of revenge.

The statement, after uttering these accusations, continues:

"In England too the mask has been dropped. It is openly admitted that Belgium was only a pretext to justify England's participation in the war, which was undertaken only for self-interest.

"Germany must be destroyed. Germany shall never again raise her head economically nor militarily. In this way is the goal of our enemy more clearly enunciated during the second year of the war.

"It is equally clear that the talk of a struggle of democracy against militarism is only a catchword used by our enemies to create sentiment and to cloak outwardly their real purpose of destruction."

The foreign office declares that even after the conflict of arms ends the allies will wage a world wide economic war which will not permit the world to come to rest on a base of peaceful competition. As to neutral rights, the statement says:

"Out of regard for the interests of neutrals, Germany relinquished for the present one of her most effective weapons, the submarine, against the enemy, also she was compelled to wage a life and death struggle."

GERMANS CAPTURED BY BRITISH IN BIG DRIVE

The photograph shows how 1,800 Germans, captured by the British in the great offensive, were guarded in a double barbed-wire enclosure not far from the zone of fighting. As a rule, the British officers declare, it was found that the prisoners were cheerful, although they appeared hungry and rather apprehensive regarding their fate. The first batch of prisoners were taken in parties of fifty to one hundred, and, guarded by British soldiers, they passed through the French hamlets. One who visited the temporary concentration camp declared that some of the prisoners were stretched on the ground, bloody and bandaged, but all well satisfied with the treatment they received. The men are shown waiting in the enclosure for the guard that will soon arrive to march the captives to the west—the first step in the trip to the concentration camps in England.

MAY ACT ON FRYATT DEATH

By International News Service.

London, July 29.—British bitterness against Germany, aroused by the execution in Belgium of Miss Edith Cavell, has been still further inflamed by the putting to death of Captain Charles Fryatt of the steamer Brussels.

In some respects, British officials declare, the execution of the British sailor for defending his ship was even more inhuman than the execution of the British nurse.

British newspapers today express their horror over the Germans' act, but the government can do nothing at present but await the report which it has asked from James W. Gerard, American ambassador at Berlin.

Citizens of neutral countries now in London joined in condemning the Germans today. Henry W. Thornton, the American general manager of the Great Eastern Railway, declared Fryatt's execution "a crime."

There was absolutely no justification for it," he declared.

That there would be such retaliatory measures was generally believed, but as to this there has been no official announcement on this point.

In diplomatic quarters it was pointed out that a policy of retaliation might cause a revival of the submarine warfare, and hence that the United States government might be interested.

BRITAIN STIRRED.

Great Britain is deeply stirred by the execution. In the official Berlin version of the captain's death, it is said that he had been tried and sentenced for trying to ram a German submarine with his ship.

The German statement says: "Fryatt was executed for a franc-tireur crime against armed German sea forces."

The British generally denounce the execution as an unjustifiable act. Baron Newton, Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, declared the execution "worse than the Cavell case," and termed it an "exceedingly grave incident, the importance of which it would be difficult to exaggerate."

Officers of the Admiralty were aroused to great indignation, and their claim is that there is no such thing as a "franc-tireur of the sea."

WAS DARING COMMANDER.

In the cross channel service Fryatt was known as the "Pirate Dodger" from his skill in eluding submarines. He was known as a daring commander, one of the most daring in the Great Eastern service.

When the capture of the Brussels was reported, the Daily Chronicle said in reference to the captain:

For a particularly brilliant exploit in March, 1915, he was presented with a gold watch, suitably inscribed, by the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty, together with their thanks on vellum.

The Berlin official statement on the case says that Captain Fryatt and the chief engineer of the vessel received a gold watch from the British Admiralty for the attempted ramming of a submarine and were honorably mentioned in the House of Commons. It adds that Captain Fryatt admitted that he acted on the orders of the Admiralty.

As soon as the news that Fryatt was to be tried was received, the Foreign Office sent a note to the American Ambassador, Walter H. Page, requesting that American diplomatic representatives take all necessary steps to provide for his defence, calling attention to the fact that the captain's act is in steering towards the submarine and forcing her to dive was essentially defensive and precisely the same as if she had used the defensive arm, which the United States and Great Britain hold to be her undoubted right.

U. S. Cannot Act on Execution of Captain

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN.

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Washington, July 29.—The United States can take no official cognizance of the execution of Captain Fryatt, British merchant commander shot after court-martial by the Germans. This was made plain in official circles today, where it was explained that the case was entirely one between England and Germany.

Officials, however, were fearful that out of the shooting would come developments which might involve this country. It is expected here that a demand will be universal throughout England that a German submarine or Zeppelin commander be tried and executed in reprisal.

There is hardly an official who doesn't admit that if reprisals ever are begun by any of the belligerents an orgy of blood never before known in history must follow. Germany, it is certain, would at once, should there be reprisals for the shooting of Fryatt, order an immediate resumption of her submarine warfare in the most ruthless form.

It is expected that a complete report of the proceedings will be secured from the German government through Ambassador Gerard.

Dutch Indignant at Fryatt Execution

By International News Service.

Amsterdam, July 29.—The execution of Captain Charles Fryatt, the skipper of the British steamer Brussels by the Germans has aroused indignation in shipping circles of Holland. The feeling of bitterness is shared by the general public and press, as evidenced by the following statement published in the Nieuwe Rotterdamsche Courant today:

"This execution may be in conformity with German moral teachings, but from the human standpoint it is indefensible. Captain Fryatt was forced by merciless German submarine warfare to defend his ship against attacks, which meant certain murder and death of all on board. The execution was sheer injustice."

Other Dutch newspapers bitterly criticize the German government for permitting the judgment of the court that tried Fryatt being carried out.

NO EXTENSION OF BRITISH BLACKLIST

By International News Service.

Washington, July 29.—The British ambassador, Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, this afternoon delivered to the State Department a note from the British Foreign Office promising this government that no American firms except those actually named in the British blacklist would be affected by that document.

The note is accepted here as preliminary to a complete reply to the American note protesting against the order, in which Acting Secretary of State Polk pointed out that the wording of the "Trading with the Enemy" act permitted it to be extended at will to any American firm that dealt with those firms on the blacklist.

The War Office report follows:

"West front—Lively artillery duels occurred in the region of Somme. Strong British attacks failed in the Pozieres region. Other attacks north of the Somme were stifled by our fire.

"In the vicinity of the Meuse the day passed without any infantry actions.

ATTACKS ON STOKHOD.

"English shell fire directed against enemies (between Lille and Armentieres) caused casualties among the civilian population and much material damage, but none of military importance.

"An enemy aeroplane was shot down at Roulincourt.

"East front—The Russians developed attacks yesterday against portions of the Stokhod River front northwest of Lutsk, held by the army of General von Linsingen.

"An attack northwest of Rokal was repulsed with severe loss to the enemy. Attacks at other points on the Stokhod failed.

"Northwest of Lutsk the enemy succeeded in penetrating our lines in the region of Tristen and caused us to give up advanced positions hitherto held by us.

"West of Lutsk Russian attacks were brought to a standstill by a counter attack. Near Zwinlarze, east of Goruch, the enemy was repulsed.

SUCCESSFUL AIR RAIDS.

"No events of importance occurred on the front held by the army of Field Marshal von Hindenburg. Our airmen successfully attacked enemy troop transports and railway stations.

"Fighting on the Sarobown-Wygodi line, where the forces of Prince Leopold of Bavaria were engaged, resulted completely in our favor."

Advancing Russians Capture Brzezany

By International News Service.

Petrograd, July 29.—The Austro-Hungarian base of Brzezny on the Siota Lipa River southwest of Tarnopol, has been captured by the Russians, it was officially announced today.

Austro-German troops have been hurled back by the armies of General Brussiloff on the whole front between the Kovel-Rovno railway and Brody in Volhynia and northeastern Galicia. The total prisoners taken in the recent fighting up to yesterday total 400 officers and 20,000 men. The War Office report follows:

"General Brussiloff threw back the enemy on the whole front from the Kovel-Rovno railway to Brody, which was captured. General Letchitsky threw back the enemy in the direction of Stanislau, south of the Dneister.

"Brzezany has been taken by the Russians. The total prisoners to yesterday were 100 officers and 20,000 men.

"We also captured fifty-five guns.

"Caucasus front—In the direction of Sivas and Kharput our troops are going forward. The Turks fiercely attacked Mosul, but were forced back by counter-attacks and fled in disorder."

By the capture of Brody, the Austro-German positions to the north are seriously menaced, and a general withdrawal of the Teutons from that region is imminent.

BRIDGES DYNAMITED.

Although the Austro-Hungarians blew up warehouses, magazines and fortified works before retiring from Brody, an immense amount of war stores fell into the hands of the Russians as well as many prisoners.

Railway bridges were dynamited, but before the Russian army was well into Brody and while the glare of burning buildings and the explosion of munitions was still lighting up the country side, engineers were at work repairing the damage.

Fighting is now taking place in the northeastern corner of Galicia for the first time since the Russian offensive opened.

Between the point where the Styr river crosses from Galicia into Volhynia, and the range of high hills south of Brody, the Austro-Hungarians have attempted feeble rearguard actions in order to check the Russian advance, but these were easily repulsed.

The fall of Brody opens the way for an advance upon Lemberg from the northeast, and it is believed that the Austro-Hungarians have already made preparations to evacuate the Galician capital. The advance guard of the Russians, it is estimated, is now about fifty five miles from Lemberg.

With Lemberg in possession of the Russians, General von Linsengen's German army in Volhynia would be in a very serious predicament and the Russians would be in a position to concentrate the strength of three great army groups against the German base at Kovel.

WAR SUMMARY

Brody has fallen into Russian hands, as appeared certain yesterday as a result of Russian gains north of that town.

The Russians say they captured the town on the morning of Friday. The Austrians admit they were defeated in fighting north of Brody, and that the fighting shifted to a point south of the city.

Evidently no effort was made to defend the city itself, after the outer defences had fallen.

The Russian forces surged forward over the line stretching north from Brody, and are now for the first time in a position where they can hope for a swift advance on Lemberg.

They have about sixty miles to go to reach that city.

The French officially report today vigorous German attacks at Verdun, but claim the attacks were repulsed, and that the French themselves gained ground at some spots.

The line at Verdun, in spite of repeated small French gains, remains approximately the same as it was after the German attack of two weeks ago which brought them to the outworks of Fort Souville.

Hard fighting for several days on the British front in Picardy has resulted in the recapture by the British of all of Longueval and all of Delville Wood, they assert. The Germans deny this.

They held all of Longueval and all of Delville Wood July 20, so that the net result of the fighting of the last ten days has been the capture of Pozieres.

BRITISH MAKE NEW ASSAULTS, GAIN GROUND

By SYDNEY B. CAVE,

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

London, July 29.—From two to three German regiments were wiped out in the savage fighting in Delville Woods, it is officially reported.

Savage counter-attacks have been delivered by the Germans in an effort to recapture the wood from the British, but the War Office, in an official communication issued early this afternoon, states that all were repulsed with heavy losses.

Another series of strong assaults were launched against the German positions in the region of Pozieres and High Wood and at both places the British gained ground.

The official statement follows:

"During the night the enemy made two desperate efforts to recapture Delville Wood but he was repulsed with heavy loss. The hand-to-hand struggle north and northeast of Pozieres and in the neighborhood of High Wood continues uninterruptedly. We made progress in all three places, despite the violent opposition of the enemy. The artillery firing on both sides is increasing in intensity.

"There is abundant evidence to show that the losses inflicted on the enemy in the last few days were extremely severe, particularly at Delville Wood where two or three regiments apparently were annihilated."

French Beat Back Attack at Verdun

By CHARLES F. BERTELLI.

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, July 29.—German forces are still pounding away at Verdun, despite the terrific pressure of the allies against the German positions on the Somme front.

The French War Office in its official communique today states that the Germans delivered attacks on both sides of the Meuse River last night, but that all were repulsed.

On the right bank the French delivered counter attacks and scored further gains. There was heavy cannonading on the Verdun front last night, particularly on the right side of the Meuse.

AUSTRIA TO AID POLISH RELIEF

Washington, July 29.—Informal assurance that Austria-Hungary is disposed to respond favorably to President Wilson's personal appeal for permission for shipments of American relief supplies to Poles in territory held by Austrian forces, have been given personally by Foreign Minister Burian to Ambassador Penfield.

Relatives of Men Executed Try to Save Casement

By WILLIAM BARRETT,

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Dublin, July 29.—A petition asking a reprieve for Sir Roger Casement was signed today by relatives of five of the leaders executed for the recent Irish rebellion, Pearse, Kent, Connolly, Colbert and Mallon.

The appeal, addressed to Premier Asquith, is as follows:

"We, the undersigned, as representatives of those men whose lives were taken during the recent rising, desire to intercede with you to spare the life of our fellow-countryman, Roger Casement.

"Having suffered from the wholesale execution of our dearest, we feel it incumbent on us to exhort you to prevent further shedding of Irish blood."

Mrs. Sheehy-Skeffington, widow of the Irish editor killed during the rebellion, is making a separate appeal to the Premier.

LINER FIGHTS A GERMAN U-BOAT

Rome, July 29.—The new Italian passenger liner Re d'Italia has been attacked by a German submarine on her present voyage to New York, but escaped owing to the fact that she was armed.

The Italian Ministry of Marine gave news of the attack in the following official statement issued today:

"Submarine attacked the Re d'Italia while proceeding to New York. The ship opened fire and finally escaped.

"The Re d'Italia is one of the newest ships in the Italian-New York service. She is owned by the Lloyds Sabaudo Line and registers 3,982 tons net. It was as a result of a ruling of the Italian Ministry of Marine, made some time ago, that she is armed with two guns for defensive purposes."

The gross tonnage of the Re d'Italia is 6,237 tons. She is 430 feet long, 52 feet in the beam and hails from Genoa.

The Shark and the Human Ear

What is a man-eating shark? Why should he and his kind assault our coasts this Summer? And how did the human race get its ear from the shark? All in tomorrow's Sunday AMERICAN, from the pen of Professor W. H. Ballou, Sc. D.

VERDICT PLEASES HEIRESS

Hyannis, July 29.—Marion Pomeroy Smith, the $50,000 heiress, today declared she was "tickled to death" over her victory in ousting Charles C. Paine as conservator of her property in Massachusetts. She said she was more than pleased with the ruling of Judge Raymond A. Hopkins in the Barnstable County Probate Court, where the case was tried, and was delighted with the persistency of William A. Morse, her counsel, in driving home telling points in her behalf at the trial.

"Really, the findings of Judge Hopkins in my behalf, his dismissal of the petitions to declare me a spendthrift and insane on the grounds of debauchery, and his honoring my petition to discharge Mr. Paine as conservator of my estate, are some things for which I am deeply grateful," says Miss Smith, in an interview with a reporter for the AMERICAN.

Miss Smith was not the only one "tickled to death" with the court's decree. Maurice Phinney, the local fishmonger and literateur and married man with two children, whom the heiress refers to as her "Boy Scout" and as having "baby blue eyes," is being congratulated by the news folks "on the victory," as he terms it. He wore an expansive smile and asked the AMERICAN to publish this sentiment:

"They could not blacken my reputation or color my 'baby blue eyes.'"

"It was a bully decision," he continued. "It vindicated Marion and put her before the world as she should be before the world. She was a poor, little, persecuted girl, with none of her own to turn to, and she was made the victim of lying tongues and scandalmongers. Now she has a chance, she'll make good."

HEIRESS MAKES STATEMENT.

Neighbors called at Miss Smith's home and showered congratulations upon her. She had a pleasant word for all and expressed the hope that the sweet morsel of scandal, which rolled on the tongues of villagers about her and married men, would disappear in the sweep of years.

"It is my intention to go to Connecticut as soon as possible," said Miss Smith to the AMERICAN. "I'm going to look after my property in Hartford. I'm overjoyed over this great victory I hardly know what to say.

"But I must not forget that I'm deeply indebted to my attorney, Mr. Morse, for the way he handled my case. He certainly did drive home telling points in my favor which, I am sure, impressed the court.

"Judge Hopkins was awfully nice. He was slow and deliberate in summing up the evidence. Oh, what a thrill of joy his decision gave me. Really, it cheered me up after the awful ordeal through which I went.

"I am going to furnish a little home in Hartford somewhere outside of the city, and then I am going to study. I am going to study mathematics. I want to learn to care for my property, learn how to save it. It so that my fortune may be increased.

WILL STUDY MUSIC.

"Then I plan to study the violin.

"I have always loved music. I can play the piano now, play it although I have never taken a lesson. But my ambition is to learn to play the violin.

"And besides mathematics and music there is painting. I have always done a little—water colors. Now, perhaps I shall be able to go in for oils."

"I'm thankful to the persons who have shown their good will toward me since the trial started. This includes the people in Hartford. It would be rejecting my duty if I did not thank the newspaper men, even if they did feature my 'Baby blue-eyed' friend."

DOUBTS STORY ABOUT PAINE.

In summing the evidence in the case Judge Hopkins called attention to the evidence of Miss Smith concerning the conduct of Charles C. Paine toward her.

In her testimony Miss Smith said: "He (Paine) looked down at my shoes. He asked me where I got them. He said they were pretty shoes. He put his hand down to feel one of them. Then I put his hand on my knee. I raised myself up and I attempted to slap him in the face. He was too quick for me. I left his office and I have no been there since."

Commenting upon this the court said:

"In every court case there is more or less testimony which cannot be true. In this case there has been stories which cannot be true. The statement of Miss Marion P. Smith about Charles C. Paine does not impress me. I do not believe it to be true."

"The ending of the case appeared to be a popular one, as it caused many of those present in the courtroom, particularly the women, to demonstrate their feelings by shaking at Miss Smith in the corridor of the courthouse and by shaking her hand.

"You must come down to my ville and spend a few days," said a bouncy, heavily gowned middle-aged woman as she kissed Miss Smith. "You are to be entertained."

Miss Smith was on her way to Judge Hopkins' room at the time to thank him for his decision, but he had left his office and was in another section of the building.

Discover Fiancee of Boy Accused of Killing Girl with Air Bubbles

Elizabeth Radcliffe, the seventeen-year-old girl done to death in strange Illinois "bubble" case.

Olney, Ill., July 29.—The Celestia Youker of the boy and girl romance of Roy Hinderliter and his seventeen-year-old sweetheart, Elizabeth Radcliffe, rises like a spectre to accuse the farmer boy held for the girl's strange death.

The quest for evidences by State's Attorney H. G. Morris revealed more startling and blackening details than had previously been disclosed since young Hinderliter dashed up in his buggy Last Friday night, it was declared to physicians at the Olney sanitarium the body of his sweetheart.

She had died, the examining physicians reported to the coroner's jury, from the effects of an air bubble in the heart, produced by the injection of air into an artery during a bungling operation to conceal the effects of the girl's unwise love.

The new facts laid bare by the State's Attorney and by members of the searching party who have turned over each blade of grass under the big oak tree where the girl rode to her last tryst with the wealthy young farmer, are these:

Hinderliter is engaged to marry the daughter of a wealthy farmer in Crawford County, who lives not far from his mother's farm.

Both the girl and her father today admitted that an engagement existed.

Neither had ever heard of the little Olney girl, who sacrificed even more than her life for her young neighbor.

State's Attorney Morris would not reveal their names.

The girl, when she takes the stand at Hinderliter's trial in November, will be the Celestia Youker of this second Orpet trial, the hero of which has been accused of a far more cruel plot than was Orpet.

BLISS PRAISES BAY STATE TROOPS

Columbus, N. M., July 29.—The official "O. K." of General Bliss was placed today on the manner in which New Mexico militia encamped here. General Bliss concluded his inspection here and departed for Douglas to inspect the New Jersey and Montana contingents.

"The only cause for complaint I found was the climate," said General Bliss. "Food and quarters are good."

The deeply pitted road over which truck trains must travel to reach General Pershing's headquarters was turned into a veritable quagmire today by a heavy rain which set in last night.

DEUTSCHLAND HAS ALLIES PUZZLED

Baltimore, July 29.—Crammed to her last square inch with valuable cargo, with Captain Koenig constantly at her side, and with the members of her crew always on duty, the submarine Deutschland still lies at her wharf here ready to sail at any moment.

While her delay in getting away is generally attributed to instructions to await the Bremen's arrival, the theory which seems to have the most reason behind it is that the officials and the seamen identified with the German Ocean Navigation Company are doing all they can to test the guessing powers of the commanders of the allied ships waiting for the Deutschland off the Virginia capes.

THROWS SELF UNDER TRAIN FOR LOVE

Washington, N. J., July 29.—Augustus Wilkinson, seventeen, son of Clark Wilkinson, committed suicide by placing his neck in the path of a Lackawanna Railroad passenger train near Port Murray, three miles from here. The young man, who recently quit work in a munition plant near Philadelphia, took his life because of an unfortunate love affair.

Police Warning to Gangsters in New York Strike

New York, July 29.—The street car strike which spread from Yonkers into the Bronx was extended to the Borough of Manhattan today, when 200 employes of the Third Avenue Railway Company quit. Strike leaders predicted a tie-up of all the Third avenue lines.

Hundreds of policemen were on duty in the northern end of the city, patrolling the lines affected by the strikes. In addition to the foot patrolmen, there were detachments from the mounted and motor cycle sections.

It was charged that gangsters were hired in the Bronx to take the place of strikers, and the police went among the strikebreakers warning all that were known to be gangsters to leave at once.

Boy Scouts Aid Hunt for Missing Duxbury Woman

Duxbury, July 29.—A posse of men and a troop of Boy Scouts searched the dense woods in this town today in quest of Mrs. Hiram Barstow, seventy-eight years old, who has been missing from her home for twenty-four hours.

The aged woman was last seen in the vicinity of Mill Brook, a lonely section of the town. Constable Joseph Bolton and Eden W. Soule are in command of the squads of men and boys who are scouring the woods.

Neighbors became alarmed when the old lady failed to return home after being absent for several hours and notified the police. Her nearest kin, is a daughter, Mrs. Edward Slocum of Everett, who was notified today of the disappearance of her mother.

Mrs. Barstow is the widow of Hiram Barstow, for sixty years a resident of Duxbury.

Door Breaks Rib of Woman Just Out of Hospital

Mrs. Blanche Richardson, sixty years old of No. 9 Union place, Lynn, who was discharged from a hospital three days ago, where she was treated for injuries received in an automobile accident, sustained a broken rib today when she was struck by a revolving door as she was about to enter the Lynn Item building on Exchange street.

According to report, Mrs. Richardson was entering the building for the purpose of seeing a lawyer regarding her previous accident. In some way she was struck by the door as she was about to enter and was thrown to the sidewalk inside.

U-BOATS BATTLE BRITISH CRAFT

London, July 29.—In a naval battle between several German submarines and three British patrol boats off the coast of Scotland, Berlin reports the sinking of one of the British vessels. It adds that the other two patrol boats are supposed to have been sunk.

EXECUTION OF MAN IS STAYED

By International News Service.

Ossining, N. Y., July 29.—One hour before the time set for his execution this morning, Charles Stielow was granted a stay until 11 o'clock tonight by Supreme Court Justice Guy of New York City.

Arrangements had been made for the electrocution. The death chair had been tested, and Stielow had made spiritual preparation for his end, when Supreme Court Justice Guy called up the prison on the telephone and asked that the execution be postponed until tonight because he had some new and important papers in the case to consider.

Warden Thomas M. Osborne was absent at the time, but Chief Keeper Dorner said that the request would be granted, and the witnesses who had gathered were notified.

Stielow, who was in his cell with the Rev. A. M. Peterson when the news was broken to him, exclaimed:

"Oh, I hope to God they are able to do something for me."

Stielow had already donned the black suit in which he was to die. One leg of his trousers had been slit and his head had been shaved for the fixing of the deadly electrodes.

Mrs. Stielow, whose request to Governor Whitman for a reprieve had been refused a few hours earlier, was in a hotel in Ossining with her children and broke down when she received the news.

Stielow was convicted of the murder of Charles Phelps, a farmer at Medina, N. Y., and his housekeeper, Margaret Wolcott.

The electrocution was postponed without any papers being issued, but Justice Guy made it known that if the papers under his observation warranted it he would grant a formal order staying sentence of death until further judicial attention could be given the case.

Many strangers to the Stielow family have been active in his behalf. By his mildness of manner and gentle demeanor the convicted man won the hearts of many about him in the prison. One attendant declared "he would not help put Stielow to death for $10,000."

ITALIANS REPORT FURTHER GAINS

By International News Service.

Rome, July 29.—Further progress for the Italians in the sector of Monte Colbricon, which has been the storm centre of severe fighting for several days, was reported by the War Office today.

Austro-Hungarian troops tried to dislodge the Italians from their hold on the crest of Monte Cimone, but all the counter attempts were repulsed.

Further counter attacks in the region of Asio also broke down before the Italian positions.

On the Isonzo front artillery duels are in progress.

S. S. HALIFAX FAILS TO SIGHT SUBMARINE

The Plant Line Steamship Halifax, from Halifax, N. S., docked at Commercial Wharf, one and one-half hours late. Captain J. J. Walker stated that careful watch was made during the trip for the Bremen, but no sign of a submarine was sighted.

Captain Walker and masters of the crew stated they heard nothing of the capture of the Bremen after they left Halifax Thursday noon. The heavy fog has lifted beyond the three-mile limit, and Captain Walker stated they had more than 100 miles of clear weather outside the Boston harbor.

SCANDINAVIA TO PROTEST TO ENGLAND

By International News Service.

Berlin, via Sayville wireless, July 29.—The Danish, Norwegian and Swedish governments have decided to protest to England against the order in council issued on July 7 on the ground it is contrary to international law, says the Overseas News Agency. The order in council in question announced England's abandonment of the declaration of London.

AUSTRIAN AIR RAID KILLS 5 IN ITALY

By International News Service.

Rome, July 29.—Five persons were killed and twenty-two wounded in a new Austro-Hungarian air raid over the Italian coast, the Ministry of Marine announced today in the following statement:

"Enemy aircraft bombarded Bari, Molfetta, Molabari and Otranto. Two persons were wounded at Bari. Five were killed and twenty wounded at Molfetta. Slight damage was done at the other places. Shells from land batteries hit the planes."

PLAN SEA ATTACK ON RUSSIAN CAPITAL

By International News Service.

Copenhagen, July 28.—It is reported here that the Germans are making preparations for an attempt to attack Petrograd from the sea. It is believed that the Germans will make a powerful attack against the Russian fleet in the Gulf of Finland. The gulf must be forced before Petrograd can be reached.

New York, July 29.—J. Pierpont Morgan, Sr., who died in Rome, Italy, March 31, 1913, left an estate appraised at $78,149,024.

Deputy State Comptroller William Buchanan will file a report in the Hall of Records today showing that Appraiser John J. Lyons, who has worked on the estimates for three years, fixes the net taxable estate of the former banker at $61,344,880.

This does not include the trust fund created in 1867 for the benefit of Frances Louisa Tracy Morgan, widow of the financier, by Junius Spencer Morgan, her father-in-law, which fund is now appraised at $1,115,052. Nor does it include property outside New York State and not subject to its tax law. In 1913 the sworn value of Mr. Morgan's English property was $5,899,155. Since that time much of the English property has been brought into this State.

When Morgan died over three years ago his estate was estimated at from $100,000,000 to $150,000,000. The present valuation by the State appraisers is low for two reasons. The stocks and bonds are appraised as of the time their owner died. Since that time many of these securities have increased in value enormously.

And the appraisal is based largely on valuations by experts who are naturally and properly interested in serving those who employ them in their expert capacity. For this reason they made low estimates for purposes of taxation. Competent judges, like Mr. Duveen and Mr. Knoedler, estimated the value of Mr. Morgan's art collection and library at the time of his death at from $50,000,000 to $100,000,000.

John Pierpont Morgan, son of the decedent, is the largest beneficiary. The present value of his share of the estate being $53,584,913. The largest individual item was a legacy of $7,000,000.

Some of the things in his famous collections are not worth the price he paid for them, but many of them are worth more than he paid for them. For instance, the famous room of Fragonard's unique and beautiful art treasures are said to have cost Mr. Morgan only $220,000. They were sold to Henry C. Frick by Mr. Morgan's son for $1,250,000 and now adorn a room in Mr. Frick's magnificent residence at Fifth avenue and Seventieth street, former site of the Lenox Library.

Several of the famous examples of old mantel, which Mr. Morgan picked up for from $40,000 to $50,000, are now worth double their cost. No. 23 Wall. Thirty-sixth avenue, purchased by his son, was appraised at $1,000,000. All wines, family portraits and family jewelry are appraised at $104,751. Furniture at Cedar Grove, Hamilton County, is valued at $8,304. The yacht Corsair, with its equipment and furniture, was appraised at $125,000. The yacht Columbia and small boats and equipments were appraised at $13,350.

RULES WOMEN CAN BATHE BARE-LEGGED

St. Louis, July 29.—Women bathers in the new South Side swimming pool will not be required to wear stockings, as Rodowe Abeken, superintendent of recreation and playgrounds in the park department, believes it is more sanitary to bathe without them. Abeken said he would require that women wear skirted bathing suits with quarter-length sleeves and that the material must be such that skirts will not cling to the wearer when wet. Bloomers will be allowed.

SWISS URGE UNION AMONG NEUTRALS

By International News Service.

Berlin, via Sayville wireless, July 29.—Swiss newspapers are discussing the advisability of a union among neutral states to defend their economic independence, according to the Overseas News Agency. The Swiss journal, Der Grutli, suggests a conference between Switzerland, Holland, Denmark, Spain and the United States.

BET TWO TO ONE ON PEACE BY NEXT JUNE

London, July 29.—Betting odds on the war are now two to one that peace will be declared by next June. This was illustrated when a insurance policy for $25,000 was put up at auction to be paid if the war is not over by the end of June next year. It was bid up to $13,000, but the policy was withdrawn from the block.

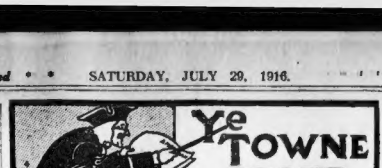
ORDER CIVILIANS OUT OF BAPAUME

By International News Service.

Amsterdam, July 28.—Owing to the steady advance of the British army in the Somme campaign the Germans are making an early attack on Bapaume, the centre which in the English forces' third goal. The French inhabitants have been ordered to evacuate the town and the Germans are now engaged in fortifying the houses for defence.

CAPERTON TAKES PACIFIC COMMAND

Washington, July 29.—Rear Admiral William R. Caperton today is in command of the Pacific fleet. The Navy Department announced that at midnight the command was turned over by Rear Admiral Caperton by Rear Admiral C. McR. Winslow on board the flagship San Diego, now at sea. Read Admiral Winslow is soon to retire.



IRVIN S. Cobb.
MY DEAR Irv.
YOU REMEMBER.
IN ST. Louis.
AT THE Convention.
WHEN I started to tell you.
ABOUT A story.
I'D WRITTEN.
AND A man went through.
TO THE bar.
WITH A basket of mint.
AND YOU lost your hearing.
OR SOMETHING.
I DON'T know.
BUT I wanted to tell you.
THAT ONE time.
I WROTE a story.
WITH A blond heroine.
AND A mortgage.
AND A hero.
AND EVERYTHING.
AND READ it.
AND IT was so pathetic.
IF I hadn't known.
IT WASN'T true.
IDA CRIED.
AND I had a friend.
WHO REVIEWED books.
ON THE paper.
AND I gave it to him.
AND TOLD him.
ALL I wanted.
WAS THE truth.
AND NOT to be afraid.
OF MY feelings.
AND ANYWAY.
WHAT THAT guy knows.
ABOUT SHORT stories.
HE COULD put in his eye.
AND I had it done over.
BY A stenographer.
FOR THREE dollars.
AND MAILED it.
TO A magazine.
AND THEY must have known.
IT WAS coming.
OR SOMETHING.
AND SENT somebody.
TO STOP it.
AND SEND it back.
AND I'VE still got it.
AND I wanted to know.
IF YOU could tell me.
WHERE I could sell it.
FOR THREE dollars.
ALL I want.
IS THE money back.
I PAID the stenographer.
IT'S PERFECTLY good.
AND WELL written.
ON THE best paper.
EXCEPT THERE'S a blur.
ON THE last page.
WHERE THE stenographer cried.
WHEN SHE was writing it.
IT'S SO sad.
AND BEAUTIFUL.
AT THE end.
SHE COULDN'T stand it.
I'VE GOT three copies.
AND I'LL sell one.
FOR THREE dollars.
OR THREE.
FOR A dollar each.
I THANK you.

Boston is one of the coolest cities in the country today, with a temperature of 71 degrees reported at noon, and a normal humidity.

Warmer weather is prophesied for tomorrow, however.

The torrid wave still holds sway in the Middle West, with a total of ninety deaths and 1,000 prostrations in Chicago alone. Conditions in Detroit and other cities are about as bad.

In Chicago, horses have dropped dead in the streets in such large numbers that the health department is hard pushed to get them removed. Ice cannot be manufactured and distributed quickly enough to meet the demand.

Ninety-seven was the mark reported in Chicago today, with even higher temperatures in down-state Illinois localities. In Des Moines, Iowa, a mark of 100 was recorded. Similar reports were received from other places.

Five more persons succumbed from the frightful heat in Detroit, bringing the total number of deaths there from heat up to thirty-eight for the month. There is no relief in sight.

According to Professor H. C. Frankenfield of Washington, official weather forecaster, the high pressure in the North Atlantic ocean which has caused a lowering of temperatures along the coast will shift Southward to-morrow, and the temperatures in this vicinity will range nearly normal.

"The high air pressure over the North Atlantic Ocean has been the cause of the cool spell existing along the North Atlantic coast," Professor Frankenfield said.

"To-morrow, the pressure will shift, and we shall have hot winds from the South which will force temperatures up.

"The situation in other sections of the country is unchanged, and there is no promise of cooler weather for the next few days."

ATTEMPT ON LIFE OF HUNGARIAN PREMIER

London, July 29.—An unsuccessful attempt was made recently to assassinate Count Tisza, the Hungarian premier, according to a report from Budapest, says a Swiss dispatch to the Daily Mail.

BRITISH WILL DEPORT IRISH ENVOYS

London, July 29.—Thomas Hughes Kelly of New York, treasurer of the American Irish Relief Fund, his wife and Joseph Smith of Lowell, Mass., his assistant in relief work, are to be deported on Monday despite protests made in the United States.

The party was to have been deported today, but the sailing of the liner Philadelphia was changed to Monday next, and they will be deported then, it is announced.

The British government offered to permit the party to sail on another ship today, but Treasurer Kelly refused.

"Irrevocable" Decision to Deport Irish Envoys

By International News Service.

Washington, July 29.—The State Department was notified today that Great Britain's action in excluding from that country Thomas Hughes Kelly and his wife of New York and Joseph Smith of Lowell, Mass., who were taking $50,000 to Ireland for the relief of that country, was "irrevocable."

Ambassador Page at London cabled the department that he had been advised by the British Foreign Office that it could not change its decision. According to Page's report, the trio must return to this country.

Acting Secretary of State Polk was out of the city today and no immediate further action will be taken by the department. It was stated officially, however, that the government undoubtedly will press for an explanation from the British government. This was asked several days ago and to date no reason for their action has been advanced by the British authorities.

STOKES QUITS THE FIGHT FOR SENATE

Trenton, N. J., July 29.—Ex-Governor Edward C. Stokes today abandoned his fight for the Republican nomination for United States Senator from New Jersey and notified Senator E. Mott Robinson he leaves ex-Governor Franklin Murphy and Vice-President Fairbanks in the lead at the primaries. Stokes stated that he withdrew in order to further party harmony.

2 FOUND GUILTY OF PITTSFIELD MURDER

Pittsfield, July 29.—Matteo Napolitano and Vincenzo Patrella of Brooklyn, N. Y., have been found guilty of murder in the second degree. They were accused of killing Vincenzo Crasco on March 26, 1915, after robbing him. The jury was out nearly nine hours. Sentence will be imposed later.

PLAGUE CASE IN WESTON

The first case of infantile paralysis this Summer in the town of Weston, where many rich and prominent families live, was reported today.

The patient is Adelfo Feranti, six-son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Feranti of Conant road.

The child was admitted to Waltham Hospital today after the Waltham Board of Health had held a special meeting to consider the application for admission by the child's physician.

The Weston Board of Health, as soon as it was notified today, reported the case to the police department, which detailed a special officer on duty near the Feranti premises. The dwelling was quarantined.

WATCH OTHER CHILDREN.

There are several other children in the Feranti family and children in several other families along Conant road. Until the quarantine is lifted the Feranti children will be kept on the premises and other children will be kept away.

Adelfo was stricken ill nine days ago, according to the report on the case, but a physician was not called until yesterday. Dr. Frederick Van Nuis of Weston was then called. The little patient was suffering from pains in his right leg.

After Dr. Van Nuis satisfied himself that the child was in the first stages of infantile paralysis he reported the case to the Weston Board of Health and applied for the child to be admitted to Waltham Hospital.

Today's report from the nurse was that the child would live, but that his right leg is at present affected.

REPORT 3 OTHER CASES.

Three other new cases of infantile paralysis were reported to the State Department of Health today, one each in New Bedford, Bridgewater and Worcester.

There are ninety-four positive cases in Massachusetts at present, and nine more suspected, but have proven not to be infantile paralysis.

The three cases, in addition to the Weston case, are as follows:

Mary Cicerto, No. 74 James street, New Bedford.

George Alesky, No. 293 East street, Bridgewater.

Edwin Borgstrom, No. 15 Wilkinson street, Worcester.

Paralysis Gains in New York City

By International News Service.

New York, July 29.—Today's figures on the infantile paralysis epidemic showed an increase in both deaths and new cases. The deaths numbered forty-four and the new cases 181, as compared with thirty-five deaths and 161 cases the day before.

The total of cases up to the present is 4,725; deaths, 1,075.

During the last twenty-four hours the health department has issued 6,099 certificates and persons desiring to leave the city and avoid being stopped by the quarantine are benefited against New York. The number of such certificates issued totals 31,799 to date.

BRAVES BASEBALL MOWER ON RAMPAGE

Like John Gilpin's horse, Dick Shaner, baseball baseball lawn mower and roller got frightened at Braves Field, this morning and refused to stop. Round and round the mower went, with Shaner sitting in the chauffeur's seat making all sorts of efforts to stop it. He couldn't succeed.

With each revolution of the eld, it appeared as though the machine were gaining speed. Shaner summoned for assistance and finally Business Manager Hapgood got some concern on the phone that knows something about the affair. They sent a man out after Shaner had made 1,075 revolutions of the field, more runs than the Braves will score in eight seasons at their present clip, the old mill was brought to a halt.

The fine infield had been nicely cut and rolled, and so too had a considerable portion of the outfield. The only untowardness about the thing was the fact that Shaner went around so often he became dizzy. When the machine was finally stopped he alighted none the worse for his experience.

COURT-MARTIAL TO END SLURS AGAINST THE FIGHTING NINTH

By BERT FORD.

Second Massachusetts Brigade Headquarters, El Paso, Tex., July 29.—Colonel Frank Graves of the Eighth Massachusetts Infantry expects to make his report in a few days to General E. LeRoy Sweetser, concerning the rumors about the firing Sunday night by Companies C and D of the Ninth Regiment.

General Sweetser, commanding the Second Massachusetts Brigade, today said:

The investigation which I ordered relates solely to rumors and not to the reasons for the shooting. As a matter of fact, the shooting by the Ninth Regiment subjects was proper, and has been reported, and the reports have been indorsed.

Outposts have been ordered to shoot when fired upon. You may state that our men will fire just as long as the fellows on the other side of the border fire, and that the orders are to shoot to kill.

COURT-MARTIAL THREATENS.

General Sweetser clearly indicated that the inquiry was to determine the origin of the camp gossip that Saturday night's shooting had been prearranged, something that no fair-minded officer or man in the Massachusetts Brigade considers for an instant.

Court-martial may result from the gossip. Colonel Edward L. Logan and his staff do not propose to have such innuendoes spread about their men.

It is no military secret that the army authorities in El Paso approve of the spirit and action of the Bay State's guardsmen while on outpost duty. They say that the pace shown by the Ninth in shooting back has greatly discouraged the Mexican snipers.

Cardinal O'Connell sent cigars today to Chaplain M. J. O'Connor of the Ninth, with directions to distribute them among the officers. Father O'Connor has his chaplain's pennant, and is proud of it as a child is of a new toy. It is a blue field with a white cross in the centre, and he has it flying from his tent. Father O'Connor is helping the carpenters build the Ninth's field chapel, which Colonel Logan held for and named for his mother.

POWERS UNHORSED.

Mounted Orderly Hale Powers of the Ninth, son of Charles O. Powers, secretary to Mayor Curley, was thrown over his mount's head yesterday, but escaped with nothing more serious than a shaking up. In fact, Powers, one of the youngest of the orderlies, gleefully returned to his task today, and mastered the horse. Telegrams were received from his dad and the Mayor making anxious inquiries. Young Powers has been shown the honor of being detailed to brigade headquarters because of his natty appearance.

Private Joseph E. O'Connell, nephew of Cardinal O'Connell, was promoted yesterday to non-commissioned of the mounted orderlies, and Privates Francis H. Loomis, Jr., of the Colonel, and Private Edward B. McGrath of Worcester, were promoted to sergeants in the mounted orderlies.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Farnstock of Lenox sent several packing cases full of luxuries for the use of the brigade. They arrived yesterday, and General Sweetser acknowledged their receipt.

The James Irvine Company of Harvard Square sent Colonel Logan hats and balls. Lament Brine, a cousin, is one of the mounted orderlies.

SCORES BUSINESS MEN.

Chaplain Boyd Edwards, of the Eighth Regiment, said today:

Why don't the correspondents rap those business men at home who make a great noise about preparedness, but who fail miserably to look after the dependents of employes who enlisted? We have forty-six men in one company whose dependents have not been helped in any way. Fine patriotism I call it.

Outposts made up from L Company of Lawrence of the Eighth Regiment stopped a Jap from crossing into the United States last night. They found a loaded revolver in his hip pocket. They turned him over to the immigration authorities who released him, after hearing his story.

Colonel Graves visited part of his border posts yesterday, and the remainder today. He started at Ysleta and worked along the border ninety-five miles to Fort Hancock.

The Eighth is to present the five-act drama, "Held by the Enemy." Three society belles of El Paso are to be in the cast. Music will be furnished by a regimental orchestra and a double quartet. Captain Harold S. Wonson, a Tech graduate, who wrote music and lyrics for Tech shows, and Captain Harold J. Patton, are to manage and produce the show.

The show and dance put on last week by Colonel Graves was the talk of the border. It opened the eyes of the regulars, and was the first event held in the camp of any Bay State unit attended by women.

RICH BATTERY A BOYS HOSTS AT PARTY; OFFICERS DECLINE

By BERT FORD.

El Paso, Tex., July 29.—Sergeant Douglas Lawson of the crack Battery A, two wealthy soldier friends, turned hosts last night and entertained 100 guests at the Hotel El Paso Del Norte, but Colonel John H. Sherburne and the commissioned officers of "Doug's" regiment, the First Massachusetts Field Artillery, did not attend.

Army etiquette and caste do not countenance the shuffling of officers and enlisted men. Colonel Sherburne and his officers would have been delighted to grace the affair under different circumstances—but in army society on the border the situation was different.

POLITELY DECLINED.

After the invitations had been issued the matter was discussed proand con, and it was decided that the only way was "to comply with military standards and play the game right." So Colonel Sherburne and his staff were forced politely to decline.

The affair began as per schedule in a blaze of feminine beauty and a burst of music, and the son of Thomas W. Lawson and his mates, who staged the function, Regimental Supply Sergeant H. O. Silsbee, of Salem, and Lieutenant David Arnold of Battery A, of the Rhode Island artillery, were surprised and delighted to behold Brigadier General E. LeRoy Sweetser, commander of the Second Massachusetts Brigade, enter the ball room with his staff.

HIRE ROOF GARDEN.

With General Sweetser were Major Charles T. Cahill, Brigade Aide, Lieutenant Julian I. Chamberlain and Lieutenant H. W. Berry. General Sweetser and staff were received with open arms. The elite of El Paso society were present. They came in gorgeous gowns. "Doug" and Lawson, Sergeant Silsbee and Lieutenant Arnold were there with bells, and so were the lads of the millionaire battery from Massachusetts. The trio of artillerymen hired the roof garden and the biggest stringed orchestra in town. The caterer, and all the latest dances were tripped. Tuxes and satins, many of them, were hired to take the guests home.

It was a rollicking affair, and it caused a lot of talk because General Sweetser attended and Colonel Sherburne did not. Among those who pranced every one step and grizzly and bunny hug were Fred Huntington, the B. A. A. hockey star, Sergeant Donn Mixer, who was fame carrying the pigskin for Harvard; Sergeant C. Sinclair Weeks, son of United States Senator John W. Weeks; Sherwood Rollins, the Lovell brothers from Concord, the three Sergeants Simpkins, Two Sergeant Tobys, and all the others of Battery A of Boston.

Mass. Boys Suffer from Ice Shortage.

By WILLARD H. DAVIS.

Columbus, N. M., July 29.—A conference between officers of the, National Guard and United States army officers was held here to take action on erecting an ice plant at the camp.

For the third time since the boys of Western Massachusetts arrived on the front, they have been obliged to undergo ice shortages. For the past two days there has not been any ice anywhere in the camp.

Hundreds of pounds of beef consigned to the regiment have had to be condemned, as they have been obliged to go without their cool drinks in the afternoon, being confined to the warm waters of the canteen.

Milk and cream have soured, fruit rotted and the patients in the hospitals have done without this most important necessity.

The trouble is, it is said, in El Paso and is caused by the great demand made for ice by the large number of soldiers stationed there. The boys say, however, that their comrades at El Paso would gladly do with a little less ice if they but knew the need of it here in camp.

Excitement was caused on the outposts last night when Daniel T. Harrington and Corporal R. A. Nystrom, both of G company, fired upon a mysterious acting man who refused to halt at their challenge.

The man was discovered by Harrington, who challenged him. The stranger fell to the ground, wiggled along among the mesquite bushes, later appearing a few rods away.

Owing to the failure of Harrington to distinguish whether he first saw the man, he was able to make his getaway. This is the second time within a week that a man has been seen in the same spot acting in a strange way.

The following appointments were made today in C Company, Worcester: Warren A. Rice was promoted to mess sergeant from cook; corporal to sergeant, Levi Lincoln and Walter Cole; and from privates to corporals, Gustaf R. Nyger, Carl Sund, Frank Dyer, Daniel A. Jones, Ronald Lachapelle, Earl B. Stowell and William Snow.

In D Company of Holyoke, the Supply Sergeant berth was given to Orland Hastings.

Really! Dr. Cook's Going to the Pole. What? By Airship

Denver, Col., July 29.

A PLAN to reach the North Pole and explore the Arctic regions by an aeroplane was announced by Dr. Frederick A. Cook, explorer and claimant to the honor of first having reached the North Pole, who is in Denver.

Dr. Cook in his announcement says:

"The plan is entirely feasible and the details are now being worked out. Several of my friends in the Chicago Aero Club are formulating a plan for financing the project. It is probable that the start will be made early enough for the aerial trip to the polar region in July or August of next summer, the best months for Arctic travel.

"Ships can now go within 700 miles of the pole, and the modern aeroplane can easily make that distance in ten hours. I probably will be accompanied to the North on this trip by Randolph Franke, who went part of the way with me on the trip when I reached the North Pole April 21, 1908."

BACON URGES UNIVERSAL SERVICE

Robert Bacon, who has just returned from the Mexican border, where he had an exceptional opportunity of studying the situation, declares that the false statements that have issued regarding our preparedness have been little short of criminal, and that it is a merciful thing that it has not been necessary to send the militia into Mexico.

"The absolute inadequacy of the militia as a national army must be evident to every one," said Mr. Bacon.

"The spirit of the men from every State represented is as fine as can possibly be, and there will be no grumbling if only it can be made clear that it has been their duty, and is their duty to continue to make the sacrifice at the expense of neglect of their families and their legitimate affairs.

URGES CONSCRIPTION.

"I am more convinced than ever that there is but one satisfactory solution for the problem of preparedness of the nation; in fact, for the maintenance and endurance of the nation itself in a high place in the affairs of the world, and that is universal service—the spirit of service and sacrifice of the nation.

"Then we learn to speak in terms of a nation, and subordinate our local and material ambitions; unless the nation, in claiming its international rights, learns to appreciate its duties and international obligations, the nation cannot endure as one of the respected members of the society of nations."

In referring to the efficiency of the regular army and its splendid morale, Mr. Bacon said:

"I constantly wonder that they have been able to maintain the morale and enthusiasm and professional spirit de corps, in spite of all the discouragements, the apparent lack of sympathy of the nation and of the lawmakers.

SYSTEM LAMENTABLE.

"It is this lack of sympathy with the work and the ideals of our army which has resulted in the present lamentable system, now enacted into law, which is probably the most dangerous principle that could be adopted in military affairs, or indeed in any great administrative or executive work, that is dual and equivocal control and responsibility."

Mr. Bacon reports that he finds a great change of sentiment and opinion about universal service in his travels about the country. He said:

"Everywhere that I have been—in New England, the Middle States, the Mississippi Valley, the South, and the great Southwest as far as Arizona—I have found but one opinion: That universal service for the nation, whether by conscription for the military or for broader work of industrial efficiency for national purposes, is the only democratic principle of national life, and only by such service can we obtain justice and equality for all citizens of the great community. These are the undoubted facts which have been emphasized by the lessons of this great world war, and which are proved beyond a question to the mind of any one who is brought in close contact with the army now encamped along our border, both regulars and militia."

SETTLE TITANIC CASES FOR $665,000

New York, July 29.—With a payment of $665,000 outside of court, the White Star line stands absolved of all liability for the sinking of the steamship Titanic with a loss of 1600 lives, and the four years of litigation of claimants is brought to an end in a final decree handed down by Federal Judge Mayer.

NORSE STEAMER ASHORE ON ORKNEYS

By International News Service.

London, July 29.—The Norwegian steamer Lockaby, bound from America to Norway with a cargo of cereals, has gone ashore on one of the Orkney Islands. It probably will be able to get off without serious damage. The cargo is being discharged.

WILL ENLARGE BORDER BOARD POWERS

Washington, July 29.—General Carranza will agree to the suggestion in the American note that the commission to settle the border dispute be given "enlarged powers."

Officials of the State Department and the de facto government of Mexico settled this point before the note was handed to Ambassador Designate Arredondo.

Briefly, Carranza's acceptance of the American suggestion will be the first step towards placing American credit behind the financial resuscitation of Mexico. No direct loan by the American government is contemplated, however.

It is understood on high authority that at the successful conclusion of the direct negotiations proposed by Mexico and accepted by the United States, financial interests here will be informed that the United States government "unofficially" will stand behind the loans.

MAY ASK $100,000,000.

The scope of the commissioners probably will include power to negotiate the formation of a financial commission, including one or more American men in connection with the government, to take over and reconstruct Mexican finances.

After the successful conclusion of the direct negotiations, American bankers will be informed, unofficially, that the financial integrity of the de facto government is more or less guaranteed by the United States.

Financial experts have informed State Department officials that the surest way to restore peace and order in Mexico would be to place $100,000,000 in the hands of the de facto authorities.

It is believed that this acceptance of Carranza's proposal will put an end to all danger of war between the two countries. The commission may include Louis D. Brandeis of Boston, associate justice of the United States Supreme Court.

It is suggested in this note that the commission be empowered to take up other points at issue beside the withdrawal of the Pershing punitive expedition and with the broader powers it will be enabled to take into consideration every matter that has served to imperil the friendly relations between the two countries in the past year.

TO HAVE WIDE SCOPE.

It is understood in official circles here that Carranza has already informally agreed to accept the proposal to give the commission a wide scope for conference and that every obstacle in the road of the commission has been removed.

Delay in reaching an agreement for the appointment of a joint commission has been due mainly to the apparent hesitation of the Carranza government to accept the proposal of the United States to give the broadest powers to the commission.

The original proposal that a commission be appointed came from the Mexican government in a note dated July 11, but in that note the authority of the commission was limited to an arrangement for the withdrawal of United States troops from Mexican territory, a scheme for cooperation in guarding the international border and a statement of the causes that led to the Columbus riot, the battle between American and Mexican troops at Carrizal and other incidents that had nearly produced hostilities between the two governments.

DINING IN SHIRT SLEEVES IS URGED

Chicago, July 29.—Peter M. Hoffman, coroner of Cook County, has sent a letter to hotel and restaurant keepers, protesting against rules which prevent men from appearing in dining rooms without their coats.

The coroner pointed out that the docket of his office is "overloaded with deaths due to heat prostrations," and that women are permitted to wear low necked, thin waists in all restaurants and dining rooms.

"Why not allow men the same privilege?" asked the coroner. "It may mean not only comfort, but also the saving of life."

DECIDE WOMAN IN POND WAS SUICIDE

Oak Bluffs, July 29.—Officers who have been investigating the death of Henrietta McLeou of Milton, whose body was found in Farm Pond near here last Monday, have decided that she committed suicide.

Two mitts and two canes belonging to the woman and her outer clothing were found in a clump of bushes where she had apparently camped for several days, and it is believed that while temporarily deranged, she took off here skirts and leaped into the pond.

BEAT VILLISTAS AND EXECUTE 120

Mexico City, July 25.—Two more victories over the Villista forces were announced today. General Pablo Salinas has been killed and 120 of his command who were captured have been executed. General Pedro Morales has captured Ocampo after stubborn resistance. A campaign against Zapatista forces has also been opened and they are being pressed steadily southward.

COLONEL GOETHALS HERE TO VISIT SON

Colonel George W. Goethals, who has been mentioned as a possible member of the Mexican Commission, is in Boston. He is visiting his son, T. K. Goethals of Brookline, a student in the Harvard Medical School. He declined to be interviewed.

DECIDE BABY IS DAUGHTER OF MISS RYAN

Chicago, July 29.—Federal Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, in a decision rendered in the famous Matters will final case, awarded Baby Irene to Margaret Ryan, the Canadian girl, who has so bitterly contested the claims of Mrs. Anna Dolle Ledgerwood Matters. Both women claimed to be the mother of the child.

In his decision Judge Landis delivered a scathing excoriation of Mrs. Matters, doctors, nurses and sisters of the Misericordia Hospital in Ottawa, and all others implicated in the outbreak baby theft.

So Margaret Ryan knew she was getting well complete and legal autothority when she took her baby, straightened the wrinkles in the little white dress, fanned the perspiring little forehead, and said with real seriousness:

"Now, Kathleen, you must be nice, for you're going to see your auntie."

The state had dismissed its pending perjury charges against Mrs. Matters. Disorder followed Judge Landis' decision. The crowd in the courtroom applauded.

DISCHARGE MEN IN R. I. VOTE FRAUDS

Providence, R. I., July 25.—Judge Arthur L. Brown, in the United States district court, today sustained the demurrers against the indictments returned in the alleged election fraud cases in 1914 and ordered the discharge of the defendants.

The decision affects twenty-one Republican leaders of the town of Coventry, eighteen of the town of North Providence and eighteen of the town of Tiverton.

Included in the number of those who were indicted were several members of the Republican State Central Committee, members of the Rhode Island Senate and House of Representatives, a delegate to the Republican national convention and a number of town officials.

They were charged with bribery and corruption of voters at the election in November, 1914, when Representatives in Congress were elected.

United States District Attorney Harvey Baker announced immediately after Judge Brown, who is a Democrat, had filed his decision that he will appeal to the United States Supreme Court.

THE DAWN OF A NEW PURE FOOD NAME

WILSON & CO.

SUCCESSOR TO SULZBERGER & SONS CO.

A personal statement by Thomas E. Wilson

THE American public has known Sulzberger & Sons for over half a century.

You know the quality of their meats and meat food products—you know the high standard maintained by Majestic Hams and Bacon, for example.

When the opportunity came to associate myself with Sulzberger & Sons Co. I saw a big, growing, successful institution, with large plants located in the right sections, with splendid possibilities to be made bigger and better and broader.

I knew the organization. I knew its men. I knew them to be men of big ideas—"live wires", eager and anxious for wider opportunities.

"S & S" built their business on their high quality standard. They were just as jealous of their good name as we are of that of Wilson & Co.

The advance in civilization creates new standards, no greater advances have been made than those in the preparation of foods and we, with our enlarged Company and increased capital, with our keen, live, enthusiastic force, will meet these demands and not only maintain the high standards of the old Company, but will put these standards even higher.

Already we see the results of the new organization. Increasing sales, heavier demands for "Majestic" products, tells the story.

We are going to co-operate with the stock-raiser; we are going to encourage stock raising in every agricultural district. We want the supply of live stock increased. With our wide facilities we should be able to bring about conditions which will lower the price of meats to you.

We believe that all meats and meat food products you are asked to buy should be handled with respect. That is why, in addition to the safeguard of United States government inspection, we insist upon rigid cleanliness and sanitary conditions in every one of our plants.

We want you to know and to believe that the name "Wilson & Co.", is actually a pure food name. It is a guarantee of purity, cleanliness and quality.

So here is the splendid old "S & S" institution—after more than half a century of successful growth—built into a bigger, better and broader organization.

MAYOR WARNS INSPECTORS OF PAVING

Mayor Curley called before him about sixty street inspectors and foremen and gave them what was probably the severest talk ever given by a Mayor to his subordinates in public.

The gist of the Mayor's warning to the inspectors and foremen was, "see that the contractors live up to their contracts in laying the new streets or you will be discharged."

The Mayor used the most emphatic words and gestures in punctuating his remarks and he frequently pounded the desk in front of him after the meeting was called to order in the old Aldermanic Chamber. Every foreman and inspector in the paving service was supposed to be present.

ABSENTEES MUST EXPLAIN.

It is said those who did not appear are threatened with discharge if they cannot furnish satisfactory reasons for their absence.

The Mayor said that a long personal experience of riding on Boston's streets had convinced him that in the past the inspectors had been stone blind or out on the job. Amongst those present and listening to the Mayor's caustic comments on their department was Edward F. Murphy, commissioner of public works, and James H. Sullivan, head of the highway division.

The Mayor said—"I am here to protect the taxpayer, you and myself. You and I are both here to protect the taxpayer. You know the paving service is in poor condition. No constructive policy has ever been followed or even considered. Unless we take heroic methods the day labor system will have failed to justify itself and will have to be abolished, and we will have all work done by contract.

MUST GO TO WORK.

"I want you men to make the contractors live up to their contracts. Some foremen appear afraid to do this. I assure you I don't care whether the contractor is a friend of mine or not or a friend of yours either, he must live up to his contract.

"In doing this you will be protected by me. False records for rock excavation when no excavation has been done or when there is less than you have recorded has go to stop.

"I know the contractors and we can easily drive out whatever may be in their minds with your real co-operation. Paying inspectors only $3.50 a day, I believe they should get $5, but they can't expect to get any increase when they allow contractors to substitute sand for cement concrete and do only forty yards of work where 50 is required.

"Guard each job with as much care as you would guard a velvet carpet at home.

THREE POSSIBLE REASONS.

"There are only three possible reasons for poor paving work. They are personal friendship, political friendship or self-protection. Never mind the friendship, personal or political, and as far as protection is concerned I will protect you if you do your work honestly.

"But if I get a report of an inspector not living up to my requirements there will be no long-drawn-out investigations. I will fire him on the spot and he will not come back. The city must get 100 cents on the dollar.

"And, furthermore, you men don't need any drivers. You are not imbeciles and if you can't drive your own horse or car get out."

BEVERLY MAN HELD ON PERJURY CHARGE

Orvide Tremblay, twenty-one, of No. 24 Pierce avenue, Beverly, was held in $2,000 for the Grand Jury in the Salem court for alleged perjury and taking a false oath. Tremblay is said by the police to have signed a complaint in the presence of Captain Wallace of the Beverly police department and Judge Quill, saying that he had bought a case of liquor from John J. McAuliffe, who is connected with the Interstate Express Company. When the case was heard Tremblay couldn't remember signing any complaint in front of Judge Quill.

WIFE HUNTS MISSING JAMAICA PLAIN MAN

Mrs. Frank Hageman reports to the police that her husband, a machinist, has been missing from his home in Lamartine street, Jamaica Plain, since July 19.

He left home to go to work, wearing his working clothes, and has not returned. He is about forty-six, of medium height. He has two children, a girl, two years, and a boy, seven.

Return Munition Profits.

Ottawa, Ont., July 29.—Profits on war contracts to the amount of $750,000 have been voluntarily returned to the British treasury by F. W. Baillie of Hamilton, Ont., president of the Canadian Cartridge Company.

BARRINGTON SARGENT, who lauds "Soldier Boy"

as the only appropriate song for the National Guard at the border.

"Soldier Boy," the snappiest and smartest of the songs provoked by the departure of the National Guard for Mexico, is making a big hit all over the country. Barrington Sargent, bandmaster of the Ninth Massachusetts, has written the publishers the following letter:

"I have had my band play your "Soldier Boy" song at all my concerts and I personally consider it the best one of its kind, both in music and lyrics. I will also state that this song is in my estimation, the only appropriate song written for the occasion.

Yours respectfully,
BARRINGTON SARGENT.

New German Raid by Air on England Causes Small Loss

London, July 29.—Another attempt by Germany to strike terror to England's hearts, through an aeria. raid, has completely failed. The War Office announced today that no casualties and only immaterial damage has been done by three airships which raided Lincolnshire and Norfolk early today.

The airships were driven off by anti-aircraft guns.

The War Office statement follows:

Three airships raided the east coast at midnight. Thirty-two bombs were dropped on Lincolnshire and Norfolk. The damage was immaterial. There were no casualties. Our anti-aircraft guns drove off the airships, which were hampered by the fog.

Copenhagen reported today that fishermen arriving there today reported seeing ten Zeppelins cruising over the Baltic on Wednesday afternoon. This, the dispatch said, was the biggest squadron ever observed.

BIGGEST TAX PAID BY BOSTON WOMAN

Stockbridge, July 29.—Mrs. Amy G. Inslgi of Boston is the largest taxpayer in this town. According to the reports of the assessors her tax is $3,365. Spencer P. Shotter is taxed $2,377, estate of Henry H. Cook $2,012, and Samuel W. Woodward $2,296. The tax rate is $16.80, against 19.60 last year. The decrease is due to the reduction in State taxes.

DANISH RULER NEARLY DROWNED

London, July 29.—A Reuter dispatch from Copenhagen says that King Christian, while bathing, was alone in a small sailing boat off Marselisborg near Aarhus, when a puff of wind caused the boat to capsize.

The King managed to cling to the bottom of the boat. People on shore noticed the accident and went to the King's assistance.

Notwithstanding King Christian's long stay in the water he did not suffer any ill effects.

COUNT TERAUCHI TO HEAD JAP CABINET

Tokio, Japan, July 29.—Japanese newspapers insistently forecast the retirement of Marquis Okuma from the premiership and the organization of a new Japanese ministry, probably presided over by Lieutenant-General Count Terauchi, the governor-general of Korea. General Terauchi is at present in Tokio conferring with the Elder Statesmen.

ARRESTED FOR AIRING BABY ON WALK

with keenest alarms by tenement mothers in particular on account of the deleterious effects upon child life and babyhood.

Hence all the more concern at the police action regarding sidewalks and baby carriages.

Another West End woman, Mrs. Jennie Silbert, a widow of sixty-five years, living at No. 12 North Anderson street, was fined $3 for sitting on a small kitchen chair on the sidewalk in front of her home.

Mrs. Silbert is an invalid. Her doctor said to her: "Stay out in the air as much as you can." She is too feeble to get much beyond the steps of her home. She sat on the stoop, but children, running in and out in their thoughtless, childish manner, annoyed her so that she carried her chair to the sidewalk.

Isaac Creedman, carpenter, living at No. 12 North Anderson street, was fined $5 for sitting on the sidewalk in a chair.

MOTHER OF TWO CHILDREN.

Mrs. William Applebaum, who left her baby in its carriage on the sidewalk, has two children, Laura, who is three months old, and Esther, who is five.

Her husband is a musician in a West End dance hall. It takes practically all he earns to buy the necessary things of life for his family and himself.

"The family gets no Summer at the beach. Mrs. Applebaum has no maid to do her work. She does the housework, gets the meals, takes care of five-year-old Esther and attends to the baby as best she can. Naturally she cannot get out with the baby to the parks.

Here is Mrs. Applebaum's side of the story:

"This is like Russian police methods. The police tell me that I cannot have my little baby in the carriage on the sidewalk, because it is against the law. I have another little girl, Esther, who is only five. The police man won't even let her sit on the sidewalk on her little stool. He told me he would arrest her if she sat on the stool again on the sidewalk.

BABY NEEDS FRESH AIR.

"There is no other place for me to put the baby to get fresh air except on the sidewalk. The policeman tells me I will have to put the baby carriage in the street and not on the sidewalk, or else take the infant in the park.

"I can't be in the park all the time for I have work to do at home. At night the city tears, which clean up the streets, go through here and sweep right up to the curbing. There is no chance for a baby carriage to stay in the street.

"The city yard is just around the corner and those sweepers are going by all the time. Then, if the children are in the street they may be run over by teams or automobiles or fire engines.

"It was about 6 o'clock Wednesday night, and terribly hot. I left Laura, the baby, in the carriage in front of the house, while I was getting supper. The poor little baby was crying. it was so warm.

POLICEMAN TAKES ACTION.

"Mrs. Bolosky, a neighbor, was talking to Laura when the policeman came along and told me I would have to take the carriage in. I thought he was joking. I told him I couldn't take the baby in the house where I was cooking. He replied:

"Take it off the sidewalk and put it in the hall."

"I told him about the fire laws and he said I couldn't leave baby on the sidewalk more than seven minutes. Then he took my name and address. She fainted and has been sick since. In the morning I had to go to court and I was terribly frightened.

"I can't leave the baby alone on the roof or I can't carry the baby flights of stairs to watch every little while. I can't put it in the hall, the nurse says baby will die if I keep it in the house."

"I have no money for a girl to take care of it or do my housework while I go to the beach or park. I don't know what to do.

EVERY MOTHER WARNED.

"I want my little baby like every mother, so I guess I'll have to move. I have lived here seven years and when Esther was a baby I left her on the sidewalk in the carriage.

"Every mother in the district has been told by the police to keep baby carriages off the sidewalks. The police will arrest us. If we don't what chance have our children got when this is the law?"

Captain Irving Dudley of Joy street police station says that the police are not persecuting anyone, but merely enforcing statute law, following complaints. He says:

"This is not a city ordinance. It is a statute. The police are compelled to enforce it. The officers of this division and myself are not persecuting anybody. We are here to enforce the laws and when we receive complaints there is no alternative.

RECEIVE COMPLAINTS.

"For the past few weeks we have received dozens of complaints from people who said that they were unable to walk on the sidewalks in this district on account of settees, chairs and baby carriages.

"The doctors and nurses of the Massachusetts General Hospital have complained to us, saying they had to walk in the street.

"For the past fifteen days the officers of this division have been explaining the law to these people, telling them that they could not have chairs, settees or baby carriages on the sidewalk without special permits from the Board of Street Commissioners.

"This is a statute and we must enforce it. Those who did not comply had their names taken by the police. The officers told their story to the judge, who issued summonses."

The ladies of Mrs. Applebaum into court was the talk of the West End today. Mothers, especially, were all taken up with it.

BRAVES

for a base. Rudolph threw out Betzel, the others ascending. Ames walked, filling the sacks. The situation was relieved when Rudolph blocked Beecher's drive and threw him out. NO RUNS.

Braves—Smith singled to left. Snodgrass popped to Gonzales. Hornsby fumbled Gowdy's easy roll and both were safe. Rudolph flied to Beecher. Maranville flied to Wilson. NO RUNS.

THIRD INNING.

St. Louis—Rudolph threw out Gonzales. Long out, Maranville to Konetchy. Miller fanned. NO RUNS.

Braves—Evers fanned. Wilson fanned. Hornsby threw out Magee. NO RUNS.

FOURTH INNING.

St. Louis — Hornsby singled past third. Smith blocked the hit, but could not recover in time to throw. Wilson sacrificed, Gowdy to Konetchy. Maranville threw out Snyder, putting Hornsby on third. Hornsby scored on a wild pitch. Maranville threw out Betzel. ONE RUN.

Braves—Wilson's muff of Konetchy a high fly to centre gave the runner two bases. Red Smith poked a single which Miller managed to stop, holding Konetchy at third. Smith stole second. On a squeeze play, Konetchy scored, Snodgrass going out, Ames to Gonzales. Ames deliberately passed Gowdy. Rudolph beat out an infield grounder, Smith scoring. A pass to Maranville filled the bases. Evers lined to Miller, who tossed to Gonzales, doubling Maranville off first. TWO RUNS.

FIFTH INNING.

St. Louis—Rudolph threw out Ames. Beschor out the same way. Gonzales flied to Snodgrass. NO RUNS.

Braves—Wilhoit out, Betzell to Gonzales. Magee doubled down the third base line. Konetchy's double hit the centre old wall on the first bound, Magee scoring easily. Smith hit to Betzel, beating the throw to the bag. It was a poor throw and Konetchy scored, while Smith reached second. Snodgrass sacrificed, Snyder to Gonzales, Gowdy flied to Wilson. TWO RUNS.

SIXTH INNING.

St. Louis—Maranville threw out Long. Miller was called out on strikes. Hornsby got his third hit, a single to left. Wilson struck out. NO RUNS.

Braves—Smith replaced Long in right field for St. Louis (Jack Smith). Rudolph fanned. Maranville out, Hornsby to Gonzales. Ames threw out Evers. NO RUNS.

SEVENTH INNING.

St. Louis—Snyder singled to left. Betzel's little fly fell safely between Maranville and Magee. Butler batted for Ames and forced Snyder at third, on a grounder to Smith. Konetchy leaped in the air, speared Betzel's liner with his gloved hand and stepped on first, completing a double play unassisted. NO RUNS.

Braves—Lotz replaced Adams. Betzel ran into the diamond and took Wilhoit's fly. Hornsby threw out Magee. Konetchy hit a long drive left, but Beschor was playing deep and got it. NO RUNS.

EIGHTH INNING.

St. Louis—Gonzales flied to Wilhoit. J. Smith flied to Snodgrass. Evers threw out Miller. NO RUNS.

Braves — Betzel threw out Red Smith, after dropping a hard line drive. Snodgrass got an infield single over the pitcher's head. He was thrown out stealing, Snyder to Miller. Gowdy walked. Snyder threw out Rudolph. NO RUNS.

NINTH INNING.

St. Louis—Hornsby doubled to centre, his fourth hit. A wild pitch put him on third. Wilson grounded out to Konetchy, Snyder's rap bounced off Rudolph's shins, but Dick recovered and threw the batter out. Hornsby scoring. Betzel doubled to left. Beck batted for Lotz and dropped a single back of Konetchy, Betzel scoring from second. Huggins ran for Beck. Beecher fanned, ending the game. TWO RUNS.

Not On Top, Yet; But New Suits for Red Sox

Detroit, July 29.—A fortnight ago, when the Red Sox had their current great drive well started, Owner Lannin told Manager Carrigan that the day the team went into the lead in the American League race, he would buy each player a $50 suit of clothes.

When Thursday's game at Cleveland terminated, with Boston winning, it looked like a cinch bet the Red Sox would lead the procession, as the Boston team apparently is safe from over the Yankees.

Lannin accordingly wrote out a check for $1,200 for twenty-four $50 suits for the manager and players and gave it to Carrigan. Then the unexpected happened, the Yankees won out in the ninth. Carrigan offered to return the check to his employer, but Lannin said, "Nay, I guess I counted my chickens before they were hatched this time. But they'll be hatched within a few days alright."

Sacrifice Hit Valuable Statistics Show Worth

Statistics covering the first half of the 1916 season effectively shoot to pieces John McGraw's idea that "scientific baseball is bunk."

Jawn, ol' boy, has come right out in the open and spoofed the sacrifice bit and the hit and run game, yet the figures show that the teams that have used the sacrifice hit oftenest have been those that have been close to the top of the ladder all season.

Peculiarly enough, the very same plays which McGraw declares are "foolishness" have been largely responsible for many of the defeats which the Giants have suffered this year.

Almost immediately after John got through telling the populace that the sacrifice hit game wasn't worth a darn the Brooklyn Dodgers came along and beat the Giants two games by using the very same plays Jawn, ol' boy, had called "bum stuff."

The Cleveland Indians are an excellent example to prove the value of the sacrifice hit game. With a team regarded by most baseball persons as little more than mediocre, they have kept near the top in the American League heap for more than three months. And the sacrifice hitting has been largely responsible.

The statistics which appear below were compiled by William Chase Temple, donor of the Temple Cup. They embrace all the games played by each club in both leagues up to and including July 6. They show the number of hits each club required to score a runner, the local sacrifice hits and stolen bases by each club. Also, at the extreme right, is a column which shows where each club stood in the pennant fight on July 6.

PARMENTER TO AID DRILL NAVY ELEVEN

Derric Parmenter, a member of Harvard's staff of football coaches, has accepted an invitation from Lieutenant Jonas Ingram of the United States Naval Academy to go to Annapolis for three weeks' work, starting August 15.

Parmenter has just completed a term in a Boston hospital, and after a two-weeks' canoe trip will prepare to hurry on to Annapolis.

"Bill" Holderbach, former Penn State coach, who is to be located the coming season at Syracuse, has also received an invitation from Ingram to help out in the early work.

LOHMAN SOLD TO TYGERS.

New Haven, July 29.—Manager Kilhuben of the Lowell club announces that Pitcher "Zeke" Lohman has been sold to the Detroit Tygers. Lohman will report to Jennings at the close of the Eastern League season.

SPORT FOOD

HEAT.

The best description of heat we ever have read was written by Hangman Welsh, who sat gleaning knowledge beside us in the little old schoolhouse years and years ago.

"Heat," wrote Hangman in reply to a question on an examination paper, "is what makes you hot."

This, however, is a serious essay. Heat is not a joke.

We do not know the component parts of heat, but we are well acquainted with its results. It is mighty profanity.

According to Biblical writings, heat was discovered by a guy named Lucifer. He has been having a h—ll of a time ever since.

The chief trouble with heat is that it is just awful distribute. Once upon a time we won a pot on four spades and a lad who held queens up pat, but headed because he had cold feet.

Heat is valuable in various walks of life. It runs our railway trains, our steamships, such as they are, and our boxing game, such as it is. Were it not for his power to generate hot atmosphere Tom Jones would still be piloting schooners across the bars.

Heat, however, is not a pleasant subject of discussion on such a day as this. We are going up to the corner.

SECOND ACT.

(Fifteen minutes are supposed to elapse between the first and second acts.)

It is cooler now.

Some like the word "coolth," while others are partial to the word "coolness." In our estimation "coolth" is the better word if you are tongue-tied.

We are told by wire that Fred Welsh and Charley White will meet somewhere some time shortly. If they don't have a care they might.

HAVE A HEART, CHICK!

Chick Evans come to scuff us,
But, heartily, methinks
'Tis cooler in the office
Than on a golfing links.

The fact that an umpire can be knocked out by a wallop on the dome demonstrates that even umpires have brains.

BEAUTY.

The world could scarcely do without
A lot of forms of Summer sport
But I could never rave about
A woman on a tennis court.

However, a woman in a bathing suit is pleasing to the eye—when she is on the stage.

Speaking of swimming, my old pal, Billy Hamilton, tells me that imitating a shark in the latest and most popular pastime among the bathers at Nantasket. It may be all right but our teeth are not the best so guess we will have to pass it up.

WHADDAYAMEAN HOORAY?

My wife has gone a sailing,
Upon the waves to roam.
She only left this morning
And I wish that she were home.

JOHNNY WILSON HAS A SNAP WITH FARREN

Johnny Wilson, the "Southpaw" New York middleweight, made quick work of Joe Farren of East Boston in their carded twelve-round bout at the Commercial A. C. last night. Wilson's peculiar style had Farren baffled from the time the first gong sounded, and, after taking a bad beating, he was counted out in the midst of the third chapter.

Kenneth Salisbury and Jim Merino all went eight rounds to a draw. Leo Downey won from Johnny Norris and Tony Vatlan stopped "Tubber" Moynahas in the second round.

SYRACUSE HURLER GOES TO DETROITS

Syracuse, N. Y., July 29.—Howard Ehmke, leading twirler of the New York State League, with nineteen victories and five defeats to date, has been sold by the Syracuse club to Detroit. The price was not announced, but Manager O'Neill said that it was the biggest sum ever paid for a pitcher in the State League.

Pitcher Boehler of the Tygers will come here in part payment. Ehmke, who is not yet of age, is a former Los Angeles high school sensation.

GOWDY HAS "HUNCH" HE'S BEEN MADE GOAT

Catcher Gowdy of the Braves has been fined $25 by President Tener of the National League for throwing his cap in the air when ejected at a third strike called by Umpire Moran in Thursday's game with the Cubs at Braves Field. There were numerous other "outbreaks" in the contest, but Gowdy alone was disciplined.

tallied. Ruth was taken out and Wyckoff replaced him. Young flied to Walker. Baker fanned. FOUR RUNS.

SECOND INNING.

Red Sox—Gainer hit a home run over left field fence. Walker flied to Cobb in deep centre. Gardner walked. Scott forced Gardner, Bush to Young. Cady flied to Young in short right. ONE RUN.

Detroit—Coveleskie struck out. Vitt flied to centre. Bush singled to right. Burns singled to right, Bush going to third. Cobb scored Bush with a single through short, Burns stopping at second. Veach scored Burns with a single to right, Cobb going to third. Veach stole second. Crawford strolled, filling the bases. Game delayed, repairing a rent in Cobb's trousers. Young doubled down left base line, scoring Cobb and Veach, Crawford stopping at third. Baker walked, again filling the bases. Coveleskie flied to Hooper. FOUR RUNS.

THIRD INNING.

Red Sox—Wyckoff singled to centre. Hooper hit to Burns, who threw wild to Bush, trying to force Wyckoff. Bush threw to Barry. Wyckoff scored as Vitt threw out Lewis. Gainer hit his second home run of the game, driving the ball over the scoreboard, sending Hooper in ahead of him. Bush threw out Walker. THREE RUNS.

Detroit — Vitt doubled to centre when Walker misplayed his fly. Bush flied to Scott. Burns out, Gainer unassisted. Cobb walked. Cobb stole second. Wyckoff threw out Veach. NO RUNS.

FOURTH INNING.

Red Sox—Gardner lined to Young. Covelesku tossed out Scott. Cady was safe at first on Bush's error and took second on a wild pitch. Covelesku threw out Wyckoff. NO RUNS.

Detroit—Crawford walked on four pitched balls. Young beat out a bunt, Baker sacrificed, Wyckoff to Gainer. Covelesku singled to left, scoring Crawford and Young. Gregg now pitching for Hooper. Vitt died to Hooper. Bush forced Covelesku, Scott to Barry. TWO RUNS.

Garland Defeats Ingraham in Straight Sets

C. S. Garland won the only tennis match played this morning at the courts of the Longwood Cricket Club when he defeated A. Ingraham in straight heats. The score was 6—0, 8—1, 6—4.

The winner had things his own way all through the match and not until the last did Ingraham offer any serious opposition. Garland's strokes, while lacking power, were well placed.

LONG-SHOTS ANNEX PURSES AT DETROIT

Detroit, July 29.—The Grand Circuit meeting closed here with a program of four races. When Bingen Pointer won the first heat of the 2:07 pace, mutuel tickets paid $146.80. Lelia Patchen, also a long shot in both elections and mutuels, won the 2:03 pace. The heavily played favorite, Don Demonner, was only able to annex the final heat.

Peter Volo, a mare, Josh, the favorite, won the 2:06 trot. Three horses took heats in the 2:07 pace, but the outside, Although stood best in the summary at the finish.

NOW THEY SAY GIANTS ARE AFTER MARQUARD

New York, July 29.—Rube Marquard's press agent has resumed activity. Around town today floating a wild report that Manager McGraw of the Giants had offered the Dodgers $15,000 in cash, or $7,500 in cash and shortstop Art Fletcher, for the left-handed flinger.

Can you blame John for being miffed concerning such a report when you recall that just a year ago he gave the "Rube" to the Dodgers for $1,500, and still nurses the belief he David Harumed the Dodger owners?

MITTLESS CATCHERS ON PLATE PLAYS

New York, July 29.—Jack Doyle, a New York fan, today burst forth with a suggestion to catchers which listens very well indeed.

"Why don't the catchers throw away their mitt when they are taking throws from the outfield to catch a man trying home?" asks Doyle.

"A catcher, in making such a play is handicapped by his mitt. If he threw it aside, it would leave both hands free to make the catch and both free to tag the runner."

CAMPBELL HOLES IN ONE

Manchester, N. H., July 29.—N. S. Campbell of Providence, R. I., former Yale star, added his name to the small list of golfers who have a hole in one stroke. Playing against Max Marston, the New Jersey crack, in the tournament being staged here, Campbell drove from the eleventh tee and sent the ball into the cup—a distance of 157 yards.

COAST STAR FOR BARNEY

Tacoma, Wash., July 29.—Outfielder Carson Bigbee of the Tacoma (Northwestern League) club, who has been the sensation of the Coast this year, has been sold to the Pittsburgh Nationals at a price reported to be $5,000. He will remain here the balance of the season.

Hon. Welsh at His Best Puts Leonard to Rout

By ED CURLEY.

New York, July 29.—Freddie Welsh, world's lightweight champion, convinced 14,000 fans who jammed Washington Park, Brooklyn, last night, that he knows how to fight.

The Champion met his recent conqueror, Benny Leonard, in a ten-round bout, and outpointed him as decisively as Leonard handed it to him a few months ago.

The Champion was there with everything that a fighter needed, and except for two or three rounds, forced the fighting all the way. Welsh's speed, marvelous footwork and wonderful elusiveness were three characteristics that Leonard couldn't overcome.

Leonard fought a corking fight, but—it was a far different Welsh he met this time. The Champion showed he was at his best.

Welsh entered the ring weighing 135½ pounds. In the early part, or rather the third and fifth rounds, the Leonard adherents were in their glory.

In these two sessions Leonard brought into play a right-hand body blow that bothered Welsh more than a little.

From the fifth round on Welsh stepped along at a pace that proved too fleshing for his ambitious rival.

Being outpointed by Welsh is no disgrace to Leonard, for there is hardly any other lightweight in the game that could have performed as well as Benny did with the Champion.

At the outset left the ring the vast throng stood up and gave Welsh a rousing demonstration.

Round-by-Round Story Of Lightweight Battle

FIRST ROUND.

Leonard sent two light lefts to the face and Welsh rushed him to his corner. Welsh reached Leonard with a stiff left to the forehead and they exchanged blows in a clinch. Coming out of the clinch Leonard jarred Welsh with a short uppercut. They exchanged lefts. Welsh reached Leonard with a short right and the New Yorker missed an uppercut. In Leonard's corner, Welsh rushed the New York boy to the ropes and worked him in the body with stiff rights and lefts. Welsh missed a hard uppercut and right to the face by a small margin. He was fighting much more viciously than in their first fight. Round even.

SECOND ROUND.

Leonard landed a light left and they wrestled in a weird manner. Welsh reaching Leonard with a long left swing, but receiving several hard blows in return. Welsh was forcing the fighting and Leonard was taking it on the defensive and scoring right to the body. Infighting at close quarters Welsh and Leonard exchanged lefts and rights, few of which found their mark. Leonard shot several stiff lefts to Welsh's jaw and crossed him with a snappy right. Welsh only tried the hardest but could not reach Leonard cleanly. At the bell Welsh was smiling. Leonard's round.

THIRD ROUND.

Welsh landed a stiff left and repeated as Leonard ducked backward. Welsh partly blocked a stiff uppercut and then Leonard reached Welsh with a right. Welsh rushed Leonard into a corner and, coming out, Benny caught Welsh a terrific right on the jaw, which stung the champion half-way round. Welsh recovered quickly and sent several to the body as Leonard's seconds called wildly for a knockout. They exchanged stiff lefts and were fighting at the bell. Leonard's round.

FOURTH ROUND.

FIFTH ROUND.

They fiddled. Welsh landed a light left to Leonard's face and body, while Leonard bumped his left glove into the champion's stomach. They exchanged hard lefts, but the New Yorker missed a right and repeated with a left hand that took him on the ropes. Leonard rushed Welsh half across the ring with rights and lefts to the body, but Welsh shook him off and again with the same movement. Each man landed twice with his left with equal cleverness. Round even.

SIXTH ROUND.

Welsh crossed Leonard with a right to jaw and they clinched. Welsh rushed Leonard with another hard right. The New Yorker came back with a left hook to the jaw and lefts that were mostly blocked. Welsh rushed Leonard to the ropes and they battled hard for a moment with neither. Welsh shoved Leonard to a neutral corner and pushed him half way across the ring as he led for Benny's jaw. Welsh landed a stiff left to the stomach at the bell. Welsh's round.

SEVENTH ROUND.

NINTH ROUND.

Leonard came out fast and tried to force the fight. Welsh was too fast and elusive for Leonard to land cleanly. Leonard rushed Welsh to the ropes and landed a left and right in sharp right uppercut into play. They jumped about the ring swinging and sticking out their gloves without either landing. Welsh managed to land a hard left and right to the jaw right. The champion jumped around and kept swing lefts to his head. In a clinch Leonard whipped in three short right uppercuts. Welsh slammed Leonard with a hard right. They were fighting fiercely when the bell rang. Round even.

TENTH ROUND.

They shook hands. Welsh rocked Leonard's head with a left and Leonard poked a right and left to the champion's head. Both men landed lefts and rights to the body. They fought so fast Referee Rocke had trouble getting out of the way. Welsh was forcing the fighting and seemed as fresh as at the start. Leonard crossed a stiff right to Welsh's jaw and they clinched. Leonard pushed Welsh into his corner and sent a series of lefts to the head. Leonard reached the champion with a hard right to the jaw. Each man was trying for a knockout. Welsh's round.

CURTAIN GOES UP AT SARATOGA MONDAY

Saratoga, N. Y., July 29.—The greatest collection of thoroughbreds in the United States will be campaigned here during the racing season, which begins Monday and lasts through the month of August.

Several hundred horses already are quartered here and before the middle of next week the total will go beyond 1,200.

LOTS OF SPORT AT ST. GEORGE GAMES

A seven-team soccer football tournament, a mile relay race and 100, 220 and 440-yard dashes for amateurs, and 100 and 220-yard dashes and a mile and three-mile runs for professionals will feature the field day under the auspices of the Sons and Daughters of St. George and the St. George A. A. today at Caledonia Grove.

Cricket Notes

ACCORDING to the schedule of the Massachusetts State Cricket League tomorrow's games are evenly divided between those on the local crease and three away.

UNITED SHOE "Whites" are down to meet St. Georges on the latter's grounds in East Boston. This game will be a cinch for the champions, as many of the latter's best players are down to take part in their annual field day at Caledonia Grove.

NEEDHAM travels to Beverly, there to tackle the United Shoe "Blues." Judging by the way the Carterites are travelling the Blues will have a hard afternoon's work holding the rivals' score below the century. However, the uncertainties of the game may upset all calculations and the "Blues" may win.

CARIBBEANS, who one week put up the largest score and the following week the lowest, oppose Brockton at Franklin Field. Captain Warren of the latter club has given his best in such a serious talk after losing to Canton that they will bunch all the way so as to maintain the runner-up position in the standing and a lively scrap will be presented to Franklin Field aggregation.

CANTON, much invigorated by their recent defeat of Brockton, entertains the Athletics at home, and there is a fair way of breaking some records should Messrs. Hagan & Cogger get started. Facing a trio of bowlers in Wright, Teele and Hagan, the Athletics are down for a drubbing, notwithstanding their fighting spirit.

EVERETT, somewhat a disappoint-ment a week ago against Needham, is up against stiff opposition in the Standards at Glendale Park. This is easily the gala attraction for the day, as the competition will be keen from beginning to end.

Eastern Y. C. Events Conditions Favorable

Marblehead, July 29.—The Eastern Yacht Club will hold its second open regatta for boats not over forty-six-foot rating here this afternoon. The heavy fog, which has veiled this vicinity for the last three days, is still hanging off shore, but unless the wind shifts to the east there is very little likelihood of its returning, thereby causing the postponement or the necessity of racing over the inside course.

The results of today's races will count for the Sir Thomas Lipton cup and the North Shore championships and as all the contenders for these championships have returned to Marblehead, from the Eastern and Boston Yacht Club cruises, there should be an exceptionally large number of entries. The fight for inner positions is very close in every one of the seven classes and, therefore, every boat will not only be forced to show at her best, but also brilliant, as every race or she will soon be out of the running.

50-FOOT BOATS TO START.

The entire "P" boat fleet, nine boats in all, will start this afternoon. George Lee's sloop, the Bernice, is topping the "P" boats at present, but a failure to finish within the first three boats this afternoon is liable to cause a costly and drastic change in the standing. The Sayonara II. is due for a win, and if Cadwalader Vernon F. West can get enough wind and does not encounter the hard luck which has been following him this season and carry away something, the Portland sloop is very likely to score her first win of the season. The Sayonara II. is a very fast sloop, but is a heavy weather craft.

Although at times she has displayed excellent drifting qualities, the Sayonara II. is more at home in a gale, and a couple of Sayonara II. days will put the West sloop up near the top of the standing where she belongs. The Ahmeek has been doing well of late, as has the Nutmeg III. and the Bernice. In fact, the entire fleet is now equal as regards speed that the outcome of the races is due almost wholly to the manner in which the boats are handled by their skippers.

BAR HARBOR CLASS.

The Vera III. and the Flight are having a fine tussle this season for the championship of the Bar Harbor class. The Vera III. began the season with four straight victories, but since she was defeated three weeks ago by Captain Joseph V. Santry's Flight she has failed to score another win. The Leenane defeated the Vera III. a fortnight ago off Manchester, and the handsome sloop is now practically on even terms with the Flight. A victory by the Flight this afternoon will put Captain Santry and his 1915 champion out in front, and she has been going well of late, as has the Nutmeg III. and the Bernice. In fact, the entire fleet is now equal as regards speed that the outcome of the races is due almost wholly to the manner in which the boats are handled by their skippers.

Assails Connie Mack's Club Plans

By FRANK G. MENKE.

Connie Mack and his associates in the ownership of the Athletics are disgracing the American League. By their niggardly methods they are working an injustice upon the seven other clubs in the circuit and bunking the public by staging sand-lot baseball for major-league prices.

How much longer is Ban Johnson going to let Mack and the Shibes get away with it?

The Athletics of today form the worst-looking ball club that has appeared on the horizon in many years. This condition has been brought about mainly because Mack and his associates have been too miserly to go out and buy real ball players. They have scoured the sand lots and plucked youths from the college diamonds. They have hired the cheapest ball players that can be hired.

And then they foist that collection of rookies upon the public and demand that it pay top-notch prices to see them perform in their atrocious style.

INJUSTICE TO OTHER CLUBS.

The attendance at the Athletics' park has shrivelled to a point where it is almost necessary to use a microscope to locate the "crowd." That is as it should be. Such treatment is the kind that should be doled out to club owners who first wreck a great ball club and then refuse to expend money to build up a new one.

The Athletic owners are suffering from small attendance as the penalty for their present conduct. But why should the other clubs—the seven innocent ones —be made to suffer, too? Why should Ban Johnson permit the Athletic owners to enter a ball club so awful that it draws hundreds where it should draw thousands? Why should Ban permit the seven other club owners to sacrifice thousands of dollars this season merely because Connie Mack refuses to buy even a fair ball team?

Each club in the circuit pays twenty-two games against the Mackmen eleven at home and eleven on the road. If the Athletics had a ball club that was able to provide a real contest the average attendance at each of those twenty-two games would be in the neighborhood of 4,000. That would mean 88,000 paid admissions. Averaging fifty cents a head, means $44,000 receipts for each series—a conservative estimate.

COST OTHER CLUBS $77,000.

In most cities the split is on the fifty-fifty basis on general admissions. That mean that each club would get $22,000 apiece. Add to that the receipts of twenty-two games on the home schedule with the Athletics.

But the average attendance nowadays, with the Athletics one part of the drawing card, is, at best, only 2,000. That means a total income of only $22,000 for twenty-two games—a share of only $11,000 for each opposing club instead of at least $22,000.

In other words, it is costing the seven other clubs in the circuit something like $11,000 each because Ban Johnson allows Connie Mack to play a bunch of dubs of the worst sort.

Crack Pairs in 40-Mile Grind at Revere

International motor-paced team races, which always score big hits at the Revere cycle track, will be continued at the beach oval tonight, when George Wiley and Clarence Carman of America will compete against Leon Didier and Georges Seres of France in a grind over the forty-mile route.

Great interest is being manifested in the reappearance of George Wiley, who returns to his racing wheel after an absence of three weeks due to injuries received in a "spill." Wiley is in good shape again and, with the aid of Carman, hopes to take the measure of the great French riders.

Whether Wiley is successful in his effort remains to be seen. He must take into consideration the rapid improvement of Seres, for this Frenchman is a much different rider than when Wiley last met him in competition.

The regular card of amateur and professional contests will precede the main feature.

BOSTON BOWLERS TO ROLL AT PAWTUCKET

The Boston Bowling Green Club, that holds its matches at the Franklin Field Rinks, will journey to Pawtucket, R. I., today, where they will play two of the fastest clubs in a series of matches that will be close and interesting.

Three teams will play the Roselawn Club, and two will contest with the Smith Field Avenue Bowling Green Club. The teams selected for the Roselawn contest are: Team 1, George McQuarrie, George Reed, W. D. Porter, and C. W. Monroe (skipper). Team 2, E. F. McCaffery, D. B. Gordan, F. L. Edwards and H. G. Whitteridge (skipper). Team 3, Robert Brides, J. L. McPherson, C. E. Putnam and J. K. Semple (skipper).

Koroni First in Chief Race at Northampton

Northampton, July 29.—At the closing day's racing of the Short Ship circuit, the meeting of Koroni, Carnathan and Dr. Kilburne was the undeeming feature of an ordinary program.

Koroni, after a week's layoff, was at his best, and after indulging first Dr. Kilburne and then Carnathan with the lead, came on and won in straight heats.

Baron Marion proved best in the 2:17 pace, after Leo Perrin took the second heat through a bad break on the part of Baron Marion.

Sir Todd II., and Emma G. had a battle royal for five heats in the 2:30 trot, the son of Todd outlasting the daughter of Peter the Great after a great contest.

M. G. A. LOSES SECRETARY.

Arthur H. Gilbert, secretary of the Massachusetts Golf Association, has resigned. Bart K. Stephinson, the former Harvard baseball player, has been elected secretary pro tem.

A Girl and a Man

Agnes Has the Exalted Feeling That Comes From Doing Good Work

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

CHAPTER XII.

Copyright, 1916, Star Company.

Agnes Morley bent over her employer's desk, arranging blotters, paperweights and other articles. Her heart still beating fast with the fear that Mr. Bainbridge might follow her into the inner office and make it necessary for her to refuse the flowers that he carried.

She did not doubt now that the bouquet she had seen in his hand was to be offered to her—yet she told herself that she had no reason for this suspicion.

To all outward appearance, she was wholly preoccupied with the task upon which she was engaged, yet she was listening to every sound from the outer office. Each time a dark shadow crossed the ground glass panel of the door she looked up timidly.

She stared violently as the knob turned and Mr. Hale entered.

"Good morning, Miss Morley," he greeted her. "Why," he questioned, as he noted her expression, "did I frighten you?"

"Oh, no!" Agnes tried to laugh. "I just didn't hear you coming."

"I hope you are not one of the nervous and flighty kind of persons," he remarked, still genially, as he struggled out of his cutaway and slipped his arms into the office coat which the girl held out to him. "I am nervous myself—sometime—and if you are, too—why, we may have a rather bad period of it occasionally."

"I don't think I am nervous," his new secretary assured him.

He did not speak again, but sitting down at his desk, began to sort out the mail that lay there, while Agnes waited, her shorthand notebook open on her lap.

After a while he remarked briefly that he was "ready," and, without further preamble began to dictate. While his dictation was not rapid, it was steady, and there was no sound in the office but the low, monotonous rumble of his deep bass voice.

"That's all just now," he said at last.

SHE WORKS SILENTLY

Agnes went in silence to her typewriter and began to transcribe the notes she had "taken down." Her mind was now on nothing else, and she was absorbed in her work. It was nearly noontime when she laid a thick sheaf of unsigned letters before her employer.

He glanced up in surprise, then hastily looking over the typed pages, the incredulous pucker still between his brows.

"Where did you work before you came here?" he demanded abruptly.

"This is the first position I ever had," the girl responded. "I went to business school—you remember—and then came here."

When Mr. Hale made no comment she spoke again. "I am afraid I am rather awkward at first," she ventured. "Are they very badly done, Mr. Hale?" she added, a note of appeal in her voice. "I am willing and glad to do them over again if they are not right."

"On the contrary, they are very well done, in fact, that I wondered at your being able to finish them in so short a time. I don't think you have any cause to worry about your awkwardness, Miss Morley."

He picked up a pen and began to sign the letters. The girl was glad that just now he was bent over his desk. She would have been ashamed to have him detect the tears which his grief commendation had brought to her eyes.

"Thank you," she murmured, going back to her chair. Here she furtively wiped away the moisture from her lashes.

Twenty minutes later Mr. Hale arose and changed from office jacket to coat again.

"I have a luncheon engagement," he remarked to Agnes. "Will you see that these letters are mailed before you go out, please?"

As Agnes took up the pile of papers and envelopes the door opened and Mr. Bainbridge entered.

"Hello, Hale!" he exclaimed, jovially. "Are you ready? Johnson will be waiting for us. You can stay and chat with him if you like—but I've got to get back here pretty soon to see a man with whom I've made an appointment."

AN INTRODUCTION

"All right, I'm ready," the other replied. "Miss Morley, if any one calls I will not be back until after 2 o'clock. By the way, Bainbridge, this is my new secretary, Miss Morley."

The girl seemed not to see the motion the junior partner made as though to shake hands with her. Her own hands were occupied with the letters she was holding, and she merely bowed and murmured a vague sentence of greeting.

But she noticed that this man's eyes, in spite of the laughter-creases at their corners, were pale and hard, and that the lips, ever curling into a smile, were thick and selfish.

Yet she reminded herself that he had said or done nothing to offend her—unless it had been he who had made an audible remark upon her appearance on the first morning when she entered the office. Now he bowed in acknowledgment of his partner's words—said "I am happy to meet you, Miss Morley," and went out of the room with Mr. Hale.

It was 1 o'clock when Agnes had enveloped, stamped and sealed the last of the letters. As she summoned the red-headed office boy and instructed him to mail them, she realized suddenly that she was a little faint from hunger.

"Everyone else is out feeding their faces," the boy announced. "Gee, Miss Morley, I thought you'd gone long ago."

"I'm going now," she replied brightly. "If anyone calls up Mr. Hale while I am away, say that he won't be in until after 2."

She entered the elevator with a warm, satisfied feeling about her heart as the thought of her employer's praise came again to her mind.

"I'm making good," she whispered to herself triumphantly. "I'm making good."

As she stepped from the car into the great tiled foyer of the building she almost ran into Mr. Bainbridge. He was returning to the office and only lifted his hat gravely as Agnes passed him. Yet she went on her way, her enthusiasm suddenly dampened.

Good Housekeeping Recipes

Good food properly cooked goes far toward insuring health and long years. As much depends on the cooking, however, as on the food itself. The following recipes have been tested and approved by Good Housekeeping Institute, conducted by GOOD HOUSEKEEPING, and are republished here by special arrangement with that publication, the Nation's Greatest Home Magazine.

All measurements are level, standard half-pint measuring cups, tablespoons, and teaspoons being used. Sixteen level tablespoonfuls equal a half-pint. Vegetables are sufficient for six people unless otherwise stated. Flour is sifted once before measuring.

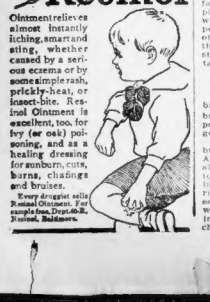
A Steamed Dinner

Put left-over cooked meat through the food-chopper. To each cupful add a quarter of a cupful of very little or brown sauce. Season the mixture thoroughly with salt, pepper, celery salt, or poultry seasoning as desired, and add a little onion juice if the flavor is liked. When cool form into cakes containing a tablespoonful each. Roll them in flour and fry in bacon fat, or other savory drippings until they are well browned. Cut large cabbage leaves in halves lengthwise, roll each cake in a cabbage strip, fasten with steel skewers, or tooth-picks, and arrange in a steamer-top with enough medium sized potatoes, peeled, quartered carrots or any other desired vegetables, dusting them all well with salt. Cover, and steam the whole until all the vegetables are well done.

French Chocolate Cream

One pint heavy cream, 2 ounces bitter chocolate, 1¼ teaspoonfuls butter, ½ cupful water, 1 cupful powdered sugar, 1¼ tablespoonfuls gelatin, ½ teaspoonful vanilla.

Combine the chocolate, water and butter and melt over hot water. Add the gelatin, which should be allowed to stand for a few moments to soften in water to cover, and stir in the powdered sugar. Cool, stirring occasionally so that it will not set, and fold slowly into the cream, which should be beaten stiff. Pour into a mold wet with cold water and chill.



This'll make it stop itching, sonny—

Resinol

Ointment relieves almost instantly itching, smart and sting, whether caused by a serious eczema or by some simple rash, prickly-heat, or insect-bite. Resinol Ointment is excellent, too, for fevy (or oak) poisoning, and as a healing dressing for sunburn, cuts, burns, chafings and bruises.

Every druggist sells Resinol Ointment. For sample free, Dept. 6-R, Resinol, Baltimore.

DON'T swim too far out, land-maid who dares the biggest toppling breaker that foams in in a green mountain! For climbing its side one day, hand over hand to the sunny tip-top, you may lift a triumphant wet head to look over into the green valley beloᴡ, meaning for all the world to ride down into it as you have done before—and stare straight into the weird face of a mermaid coming up the other side. Her ears will be periwinkled shells, her eyebrows scalp fins, her hands webbed, her eyes the unwinking, jade-green jewels of a fish's, her hair red and green and sea-weedy. And you, coming in to shore as fast as your Australian crawl will take you, you pant out your tale in the sand and faint at the end! But remember also, that the poor fish-maiden will be as frightened as you, and will tell the tale in an oyster-shell palace that night with the big salt tears swimming down.

Girl Workers Who Win

THE PROFESSIONAL SHOPPER WHO FOUND SUCCESS

By JANE M'LEAN

She was remarkably beautiful. There was something about her that made people notice her, and, because she regarded it sensibly, it did not make her vain. Her name, too, was unusual—it was Valentine. When people saw her they invariably exclaimed:

"What a beautiful girl!" And when they heard her name they said, "And her name just suits her."

Valentine had never known anything but admiration. She took it as her due, and if she did not receive it she thought the people who were unwilling to recognize such charm almost old-fashioned. Valentine was not a girl of wealthy parents. Her mother had not been able to give her an extended education and she had rebelled against going into an office.

"I couldn't stand working at a desk all day," she had explained prettily to an old friend of her mother's who had been taking into consultation about getting work for Valentine to do.

"What would you like to do, my dear," the older woman asked, watching the color come and go under Valentine's golden skin. For her skin was golden; it had just that warm white color, and her eyes were long and almost green. And she was tall and very slim and sweet, like a flower on a stem. And the woman thought to herself: "Valentine is a girl who might do anything if her beauty does not spoil her."

Finally it was decided that Valentine try professional shopping. It was an outdoor job, pleasant and interesting, and reasonably remunerative. One woman was employed by many stores and given a commission on the things she sold. It all sounded very fascinating, and Valentine quite liked the idea and entered the work with her heart and soul wrapped up in it. She was so beautiful that she attracted trade readily, but she also gave her opinion almost too freely at times.

One day she was to shop for cretonne with a Mrs. Carey Sheldon. Mrs. Sheldon was cantankerous, but very rich, and rich people can afford to be almost anything. Mrs. Sheldon no doubt expected to meet a different type of woman, for when she met Valentine she stood back and gazed at the girl in astonishment.

"Do you mean to say that you do professional shopping?"

"Certainly," Valentine responded, looking at the wealthy Mrs. Sheldon with equanimity.

"Do you know anything about cretonne? I have some chints to buy for my country home."

"I know a little about everything," Valentine said, promptly.

"Hm!" said Mrs. Sheldon. "Well, I'll try you. I suppose you know that you are beautiful, too beautiful for a position like this?"

"Of course I know it," the girl responded.

"What's that?"

"I said that I knew it, but I'm not a bit spoiled, really. I wouldn't help losing it, because everybody tells me about it."

Mrs. Sheldon's aristocratic face relaxed into a smile. She had never heard a girl speak like this one did. But she learned still more about Valentine; she learned that her beauty was not her only asset. The girl was clever enough not to let it spoil her. She really knew things and her day with Mrs. Sheldon was a successful one.

"You ought to be buying things for yourself," Mrs. Sheldon said over the luncheon table. "I don't suppose you get much at this work."

"I get enough. I won't be doing this always."

"What would you like to do?"

"Interior decorating." And the girl's eyes lighted and her charming face dimpled softly as she said help losing it, because everybody tells me about it."

"So you have it all fixed, have you? Well, I'll help you, if that's what you're waiting for. That is if you'll come out to Cedarside for a week and help me place the cretonnes. Then I can see how well you do it. You're not like the girls I know; none of them has any desire to do anything. You seem to have a purpose in life, you have taken the talent God gave you and are making it count. Beauty is just as much of a talent as anything else, and I propose to help you make good. I wish there were more girls like you."

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

VISITING AN INVALID

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Would it be considered correct for a girl to visit a man suffering from injuries and confined to a private ward in a hospital? And in the way of a token of her sympathy what might she bring him. PUZZLED.

THERE is no reason why you should not visit a sick friend, just as you would go to see a girl who was suffering. A book, flowers, fruit or, better still, a little bit of home cookery would be perfectly appropriate offerings.

DON'T BE SILLY

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX.

I am a high school student and am in love with a college graduate. He greets me, but does not know I love him. Should I press my attentions or try to give him up? ONE IN LOVE.

FOR a girl to talk of "pressing her attentions" upon a man who does not care for her is sad and absurd at once. You will only make a fool of yourself, my dear girl, if you give your love unsought—and a little high school student must think of winning promotion in her studies instead of hearts!

DON'T MAGNIFY TRIFLES

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am giving private lessons in English to a young lady whom I have learned to love dearly. I am a college student with good prospects for the future.

According to some of her actions toward me, I would think that she is taking more than a passing interest in me, and seems to take me entirely in her confidence whenever a conversation is begun. When, after the lesson, I ask her if I may see her home, however, she always answers rather indifferently, "It's up to you," or, "Just as you please." If she cared for me wouldn't she answer more concretely?

U. V. F. S.

I AM afraid you are over sensitive.

Since this girl talks to you confidentially and permits you to escort her home, don't worry over shades of meaning in her voice and phrases. Set manfully about winning the regard you want.

DON'T BE SUPER-SENTIMENTAL

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am eighteen and have been going about with a man two years my senior. He was called away on a business trip to San Francisco last February. He promised to write to me, but I have never heard from him since. Another young man has asked me to let him call, but I hesitate, as I love the first man dearly, and I think I would be doing wrong. MOLLIE.

I AM afraid you are wasting your affections on a fickle boy, who takes towards you the "out of sight, out of mind" attitude. You are foolish to sacrifice friendships which come to mean a great deal to you for the sake of the memory of a boy who seems to have forgotten all about you.

The Biography of a Sinner

Vera Runs Away from Norton and Waits on the Verandah for Rex

By ANN LISLE.

Copyright, 1916, International News Service.

"We're all ready, we go, Vera? Down to the shore? Crystal Beach?" For a moment I had an expensive impulse. It would be the greatest lark in the world to drift languidly into the dining room of the Crystal Beach Hotel and flaunt Norton Gregory in Jim Donaldson's face.

If I made the man jealous of one another perhaps I could be sure of one. What was the use of being popular and attractive if you simply couldn't bring a man to the point? I wondered how other girls did that.

Then I decided that that was the awkward thing a country coquette might just be expected to do. I had a quick, half-ashamed vision of Jim's weary eyes studying me with a little lurking gleam that meant he saw through me and thought my methods very obvious. So I decided against Crystal Beach.

In looking back over that day it seems as if fate gave me every chance in the world and that I perversely refused to avail myself of her efforts. Perhaps I might have averted tragedy if I had not been so intent on my own selfish interests.

An inspiration came to me. I thought I knew exactly what Norton would like best to hear. "Let's go to Johnson's, out on the river road, Norton. That was the first place we ever went together."

I managed to make it sound very sentimental even while I was thinking how delicious some of Mrs. Johnson's waffles would taste!

We got there before five, ordered supper for six and went out for a row on the lake. Then I put my power to the test. I did every thing in the world to make Norton feel that I had missed him almost beyond words, and that this was the happiest moment I had known since the night of Corinna's engagement when he had come into the room with Myra.

"That hurt, Norton," I said melodramatically. "I had trusted you." Norton rose to the bait splendidly. He got sentimental—but not unmanageably.

A TWILIGHT SUPPER

Sunset was fading to twilight as we finished our supper. The August moon seemed to be swimming up from the river in a red glow. It was a night for romance. Suddenly I had a wild distaste for myself. If only I were with Jim Donaldson instead of Norton.

"Let's take a little walk through the old grove before we drive back. What do you say, Vera?"

I said "yes." We wandered to the grove and climbed Lookout Hill. Below us the river lay in silver mystery. A soft, warm breeze blew up from it, and I felt it was stirred lazily. We sat on the grassy hillside, looking across the bank at the distant lights, prickling out in the blackness.

Suddenly Norton caught my hand. His fingers felt hot and feverish—but his palm was almost wet. I had a vague distaste for the sudden contact. But he drew me closer and I did not resist. Then his arms went about me and I felt his lips on mine. They were strange, hungry kisses such as I had never known before. I struggled, but Norton only held me closer.

"I love you, Vera—I want you."

His voice seemed strumming in the thick haze of emotion which was choking down on me from every side.

I knew suddenly that I must get away—that I did not care for Norton at all. I had a moment of absolute honesty. "I can't marry you Norton—I don't care enough," I said.

"Marry me—who said anything about marrying? I love you, Vera." And Norton drew me closer.

VERA RUNS AWAY

Then with a burst of young strength I pushed him away and ran wildly back across the hilltop, down through the grove and on with the desperate feeling that I must get away. Even in my panic and anger my mind was working steadily. The Hillside station was less than two miles distant. I knew I could get a train there and ride back to Roxbrooke. I never wanted to see Norton again.

Suddenly I heard him crunching after me through the forest. I thought of the story of Apollo and Daphne. There was a little bend in the road and an old hollow tree where Rex and I had sought shelter from a storm when we were summering at Hillside once years before. I remembered it now and crept slowly toward it and lay hid.

"Vera! Vera! For the love of heaven, answer me, Vera. Where are you?" I could hear Norton's voice thrilling out angrily, but with fear back of his wrath. I did not answer. I hardly dared to breathe. I heard him crashing about wildly in every direction. I waited until twilight changed to darkness and darkness grew black and heavy. I think an hour must have passed. I knew it was now fully half past eight. The down train went by at nine.

SHE GETS THE TRAIN

I crept out and hurried over to the main road. I was sure Norton had gone back to Johnson's and would wait for me there, thinking that as soon as my anger cooled I would come back to the comfort of the motor ride rather than the hot, stuffy train which jerked into Roxbrooke at 11 o'clock.

I made the train without any difficulty. All through that long hour down I was hating Norton and myself and wishing that I had gone with Len and Mildred. Three years have passed since then, but I am still wishing I had that day to live over.

At a little after ten I crept up the path which led to our house. It was still and dark. Mother and Father were not inclined to sit up late. I knew they thought that I had gone with Len. And so I was quite safe from comment or reproach. I decided to wait out on our vine hung piazza until Rex came home. I felt a sudden need of confiding in him. I was hurt and shamed.

I had had my first concrete knowledge of good and evil, and I knew now that they could touch the life of a girl however strictly she was brought up. A shudder ran through me as I remembered Norton's kisses. Then I thought of Jim Donaldson and in a sudden, queer revulsion of feeling I decided that he would never have treated a girl as Norton had treated me. There are refinements of brutality—but I did not know that then.

PRICES OF HOGS ARE SOARING AGAIN

Washington, July 29.—How the increase in the cost of living has progressed in the last thirty or forty years was explained by Governor J. B. Kendrick of Wyoming, an old stockman, who has watched the march of events.

"Once a chicken is worth more than a turkey was a few years ago; a turkey more than a hog; a hog more than a cow used to be worth, and a cow more than a horse.

"In March, 1879, I went down to Texas to look over 2,000 head of steers I had in Nebraska county, northern Texas," Governor Kendrick said. "While I was down looking over the young cattle I was asked by the manager of the ranch if I cared to buy some older steers. The owner, I was told, had a number of six-year-old steers that he would sell, although he was not anxious. He was going to hold them until he got his price, he declared.

"The manager impressed upon me, however, that I need not hope to buy unless I was willing to pay the owner's price.

"I asked the price, and was told that he wanted $15 a head. Think of it—$15 a head for six-year-olds, and today calves are bringing $50."

PITTSFIELD COUPLE TO WED AT SIXTY

Pittsfield, July 29.—George Washington Sardam and Mrs. Orrin Sardam Murray have filed intentions of marriage. Nie and Mrs. Murray are each sixty years old, the latter being a widower and Mrs. Murray is a widow. They have known each other forty years. Both have been living alone and have been lonesome. They will be married early next week and will liv in this city.

TRUTH, JUSTICE BOSTON AMERICAN EDITORIAL PAGE PUBLIC SERVICE

Saturday, July 29, 1916

Congress, Not Individuals, Should Care for Militiamen's Families

A BODY of patriotic men and women have arranged a field day to be held at New York today for the benefit of families of militiamen now at the front. A similar benefit fund is being raised by other means in this State.

The purpose is an admirable one, but it should never have been left for private individuals either in New York or here in Massachusetts, however patriotic and however benevolent, to undertake a service which is a clear duty of the United States Government.

The AMERICAN hopes that every one who possibly can will attend this field day and contribute as much as they can to rectify the gross injustice done by a negligent Congress to the men who now guard the frontier of the United States against the raids of Mexican bandits.

It is an outrage that the Democratic Administration at Washington should have been thus negligent of its obvious duty to the militiamen's families. The benefit today will serve a noble purpose, but it should serve even a more useful purpose by impressing upon the minds of those participating in it the fact that this Democratic Administration was willing to let the families of its volunteer soldiers starve while the wage-earner went to the front.

In a letter to the AMERICAN of about two weeks ago Mr. Hearst laid down these unanswerable propositions:

"If a citizen can stand ready to give his life for the service of the country, the least the country can do is to be willing to take care of his family.

"This republic does not desire to maintain and support a great professional standing army.

"The government should depend for its protection not on a professional standing army which the government supports, but on the whole citizenship which supports the government.

"There is no democracy in maintaining a great standing army to be the servant of those in power. A better democracy would consist in creating an armed and trained citizenry who would be the masters of those in power.

"A professional army always under pay from the government requires no unusual pay or pension or special consideration for dependent families during war.

"Fighting is the regular and only business of such an army, and it is for that purpose that they are being paid in war and in peace.

"Fighting is not the regular business of a citizen soldiery. Their regular business is the conduct of the business of the nation. Their incomes and activities are assessed for the maintenance of the government.

"Fighting is the exceptional occupation of a citizen soldiery undertaken in times of emergency for purely patriotic purposes.

"When, therefore, war comes and these citizen soldiery leave their business and leave their families and go forth to risk their lives as well as their occupations and enterprises for the protection of the government and of the whole people, the smallest return that a government can make for such heroic self-sacrifice is to provide for the beloved families which these citizen soldiers leave behind them."

Congress has completed no legislation for the relief of the destitute families of the men now on the border. Recently the Senate did indeed add to the army appropriation bill a provision for $2,000,000 to be applied to this purpose. But the House has yet to act upon this appropriation. We cannot for a moment believe that the House will fail to agree to it, but pending its action the families of soldiers are facing eviction and starvation.

It is fortunate that public-spirited citizens should have arranged to provide funds that may temporarily relieve the worst cases of distress.

But having done this, they should unite with the AMERICAN in urging upon Congress and the administration the performance of its plain duty.

They should help to demonstrate to the President, and to the Congress, that to be thus niggardly toward the nation's defenders is only to heap ignominy and disgrace upon the administration and the political party of which it is the responsible head.

Placing the Blame for Bad Phone Service

THE response to the AMERICAN editorial on the bad service of the local telephone company was prompt and interesting.

The communication of W. B. Driver, Jr., "To All the Employes," is very interesting indeed. Although it has already been published in the AMERICAN news columns, it is so refreshing and quieting that we publish it again in this column.

To All the Employes:

In view of certain statements made in the press, I wish you all to feel assured that no responsible person in the company's service has anything other than the utmost confidence in the ability and earnestness of the whole force of operating employes.

I, with all other supervising officers, understand the difficulties, because of weather conditions and the pressure because of an unprecedented traffic, under which all central office forces have been working.

With you I resent hidden attacks upon your faithfulness, and for you I shall do all that can be done to guard you against statements that I know to be unfair to you and unfounded.

(Signed) W. B. DRIVER, JR.,
General Manager.

NOW, therefore, the public knows that this bad service is not due to the irresponsibility of the employes or to the lack of discipline or control of the employes on account of their organization into a trade union. The investigation for the cause of this bad service must take an entirely different direction.

This is exactly as the AMERICAN suspected, and we are quite gratified to have obtained such prompt confirmation of our belief that the cause of bad service does not lie with the employes at all, but with the company.

The suggestion that the bad service is due to "weather conditions and the pressure because of an unprecedented traffic" is not very satisfying, because this bad service began long ago, and its deterioration has been constant and progressive.

The AMERICAN made no hidden attack upon the faithfulness of the employes. It was seeking to drive, and did succeed in driving, the telephone officials to take one position or another—either to exculpate the employes or to accuse them publicly. Now that the employes have been exonerated, we shall place the responsibility, where we always believed it belonged, upon the local management.

The Mound of Years

By William F. Kirk

WHEN the flush of youth has vanished
Like a sun that slips away
And the youthful laugh is banished
With the joys of yesterday,
We behold the meadows gleaming
As they gleamed in years agone
When the blossoms brought us dreaming
And the robins sang at dawn.

WE behold the flashing river
And the dark green hills above
Where the sunlight seemed to quiver
In an ecstasy of love,
We behold with eyes grown older,
Eyes that know a magic scope,
Life's abandoned fires that smolder
On the distant trail of Hope.

ON the Mound of Years we linger
While we hear the vesper bell,
While we see the sun's last finger
Pointing at the sign Farewell.
Life is richer, sweeter, dearer,
Death a journey past the spheres
When we gaze into the mirror
Standing on the Mound of Years.

Music of the Spheres

By Garrett P. Serviss

"What is the 'music of the spheres'? Is it the vibrations culminating in sounds, colors, and conditions of matter?—J. L. W."

THE "music of the spheres" is a sublime mental conception, which may or may not have a material basis.

It is the flower of the idea of harmony in its broadest sense. Pythagoras, Plato and other ancient thinkers were charmed by this idea, and they sought to express its beauty and the principle on which it rests by imagery and suggestion. According to Pythagoras, who discovered the harmonic numbers underlying musical consonance, this celestial melody always surrounds us, but, being accustomed to it from our birth, and having nothing with which to compare it, nothing to render it evident to our bodily senses (which are concerned only with the coarser stimuli of the heavy material world), we do not perceive it.

The central thought was that the heavenly bodies were carried round and round the earth embedded in concentric crystalline spheres, or shells, of absolute transparency, and that these revolving shells, moving over one another, produced an all-pervading harmony of sounds, of superhuman delicacy and beauty.

CICERO BELIEVED IN IT

Cicero, level-headed statesman as he was, capable of dealing with the stern realities of the Roman world, believed in the music of the spheres. Shakespeare put the substance of the idea in words that can never die. He makes Lorenzo, in "The Merchant of Venice," say to Jessica, as they sit on a moonlit bank, on an exquisite Italian night:

"... Look, how the floor of heaven
Is thick inlaid with patines of bright gold!
There's not the smallest orb which thou beholdst
But in his motion like an angel sings,
Still quiring to the young-eyed cherubims.
Such harmony is in immortal souls,
But whilst this muddy vesture of decay
Doth grossly close it in we cannot hear it."

Science has nothing to say about the music of the spheres, and recognizes no such thing, for there are no crystal shells surrounding us, and the earth is not the centre of motion for any of the heavenly bodies, not even the moon, since the only effect of the earth's attraction on the moon is to bend its path in and out as it travels with the earth round the sun. As has been often said the discovery that comets rush in every direction through space around us "demolished the crystalline spheres."

But notwithstanding all this, the underlying principle of the music of the spheres runs through all scientific discovery. The universe is found to be an organic whole; its laws are everywhere applicable, and harmoniously active. But harmony is the soul of music, and if we widen the idea of music so as to include every kind of harmonic action, and not simply the accordant vibrations of air which affect the brain through the ear, we perceive that the "music of the spheres" may be an expression for the harmonious working of the entire machinery of the universe.

And very likely this was the real thought in Plato's mind when he averred that each of the revolving spheres carried with it a siren, sounding its own particular note, and that these various notes being in harmonious accord, produced a perfect concert, which so delighted the attendant sirens that they "sang divine songs and accompanied them with a sacred dance." This method of expression was merely a poetic dress for an idea that even Plato was unable to define without the use of figurative language.

Thus Plato had at least the germ of the thought on which modern science is based, viz., that everything in the universe is at the same time relative and accordant, and that, though possibly undiscoverable to us, there is a principle of harmony which forms the clue to all phenomena.

It is natural for us to seek this principle in vibration, or motion, because we find that that prevails everywhere. Light, heat, sound, electricity, atomic action, nay the very existence of atoms and of matter and life itself, depend upon vibratory motion. The universe quivers, and therefore, and thereby, it lives.

Two Sides of the Triangle Have Been Wiped Out by Death; the Third Is in Prison---

The Key to the Triple Tragedy of Love and Death—Atwood-Adams-Harris—Has Been Discovered by the Sunday AMERICAN. It Will Be Revealed, Exclusively in the AMERICAN, as the Most Remarkable Newspaper Feature of Years.

Celia Adams is dead—whether by murder, accident or suicide, no one has been able to say. Dr. Harris is dead, and his body has gone home to be laid to rest in the land from which he sprung. Dr. Atwood, who says it was for love of dead Celia Adams that he killed Dr. Harris, awaits trial on the grimmest charge the law can bring.

The whole pitiful tragedy has been laid bare—it would seem. As a matter of fact, the real story behind that tragedy is clouded in the most profound mystery. Contradictions, inconsistencies and impossibilities have baffled the police at work upon the case. The secret story of Dr. Harris and Dr. Atwood and Celia Adams—that story has been hidden away behind a fast-locked door.

The Sunday AMERICAN has found the key to that locked door. The Sunday AMERICAN'S presentation of a set of remarkable new facts in the case will be the most spectacular newspaper feature of years.

Celia Adams was the central figure in the tragedy; she is the central figure in these new developments; a figure of tragedy and romance and mystery and beauty.

You cannot afford to miss this feature of tomorrow's Boston Sunday AMERICAN.

Did you know about the thirst for knowledge in the Back Bay?

It is there, beyond cavil.

A certain Back Bay girl, wealthy, with much idle time upon her hands, decided that she would—now, what do you suppose—

Study chemistry!

She not only decided to do so; she set about doing it!

WHY did she do this? WHAT does a wealthy young Back Bay girl want to know about chemistry? WHAT sort of experiments do you suppose she is planning? WHY this thirst for knowledge?

Interesting questions; and they are interestingly answered by the young lady herself—

In tomorrow's Sunday AMERICAN.

Will the movies drive into oblivion the spoken drama?

Many people have discussed this topic. Most of them knew nothing about the movies or the spoken drama.

But this is an interesting question, just as the stage—and the movies—are among the most interesting features of our daily life: for—

"All the world's a stage; and men and women on it only players"—

Most of us have written a play—or wanted to—or acted on the stage—or wanted to—or posed for the movies—or wanted to—and so—

When Nat Goodwin sits down and for an hour discusses the stage, the movies, the history of each, how each can help the other, and the future of each—

Then you all want to read what he says. You may do so, simply by buying tomorrow's Boston Sunday AMERICAN.

A man built a fence.

Half the trouble in the world is made by women and by money.

The rest is made by fences; and this particular fence, out in Melrose Highlands, has made even more than its share.

It is just a common, ordinary fence, made out of boards—wooden boards with nails in them—and it stands about six feet high.

But my, what a stew about that fence!

For further details, see tomorrow's Sunday AMERICAN.

The Deutschland has her clearance papers and may sail; the Bremen is somewhere in the Atlantic and may make port. Verdun may fall—though we doubt it. The Germans may win ground in Picardy—or lose it. This war is a big, busy thing; and many things may happen in it.

Whatever happens, if the censor lets it cross the Atlantic, you will know after you have read your tomorrow's Sunday AMERICAN.

By the way, speaking of war—which do you consider more beautiful, a beautiful man or a beautiful woman?

It may be perfectly true that you would kick a beautiful man while you would kiss a beautiful woman—or try to. But stop and consider the thing coolly! Which is more beautiful?

A beautiful man, Mihail Fokine of the Russian ballet, believes the pulchritudinous male has everything his own way in this argument. Listen to just one sentence:

"She (a woman) is only beautiful from her eighteenth to her twenty-fifth year; he is handsome from his twentieth to his fiftieth year."

After that, don't you want to read the rest of his article in tomorrow's Sunday AMERICAN?

And too much water is liable to make you bald—

And the black shadow of a negro ancestor hangs like a gloomy cloud over the romance of Prince George of Battenberg and the beautiful Countess Nada Torby, daughter of the Grand Duke Michael of Russia—

And sharks have acquired their taste for human flesh from eating the bodies of sailors lost in the North Sea; but they gave us our ears—

And a certain judge thinks "Shame Spots" might cure certain evils today just as the old custom of whipping through the streets men and women who violated moral laws was a strong argument for morality—

And the Princess Fernanda Riabouschinsky, Italy's most famous beauty, shows with artistic photographs what sort of games to play at the seashore if you wish to be beautiful—

And Lady Duff Gordon discusses the Summer fads in hats and veils—

And all this treasure trove of interesting reading appears exclusively in tomorrow's Sunday AMERICAN.

If you put in your order now, you will be sure of getting a copy.
